

Covert Action Curb Recommended

—The New York Times

Washington — The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities, concluding its 15-month long investigation, Monday urged Congress to adopt a new, omnibus law covering foreign and military intelligence gathering that would create charters for the major agencies and sharply limit the use of covert action as a tool of foreign policy.

In a report that had few disclosures, the committee disclosed that the United States has conducted some 900 major or sensitive covert operations in the last 15 years alone. As one check on such actions, it recommended that Congress be informed in advance of proposed covert operations in the future. In one proposal for structural reform, it urged that the director of central intelligence be given authority over the entire intelligence community — to set the overall budget, allocate resources, and determine national intelligence requirements for all agencies including the military.

The legislative future of its recommendations is far from clear. The committee made "recommendations" for legislation by Congress but will not introduce the bills itself. Instead, when a permanent oversight committee is created it would take these recommendations as the basis for a legislative package.

The new law is needed, the committee said, because "Congress has failed to provide the necessary statutory guidelines to insure that intelligence agencies carry out their missions in accord with constitutional processes." It would, in effect, recast the National Security Act of 1947 which created the modern intelligence system.

The new law, the committee said, should set "clearly defined prohibitions or limitations" on intelligence-gathering techniques and operations, define the roles of each intelligence agency and "set forth the basic purposes of national intelligence activities."

"This revision should be given the highest priority by the Intelligence Oversight Committees of Congress, acting in consultation with the executive branch," the committee said.

The proposal is the centerpiece of a 474-page report on foreign and military intelligence which culminates an investigation begun in January 1975. The committee is expected to make public a report on its domestic intelligence findings this week. Monday's report carried 87 separate recommendations for statutory or administrative change based upon "findings of fact" in areas ranging from drug tests on humans to covert operations in Chile.

At the request of the intelligence agencies, the committee withheld three chapters of its report, on "Cover," "Espionage" and "Budgetary Oversight" from the public, and deleted sections on covert action and intelligence operations of the State Department. A staff spokesman said this amounted to some 200 pages, but the material would be available to be read by the 100 senators.

The committee also voted 6 to 5 in a closed meeting Monday to ask the full Senate whether it could release the total budget figure for U.S. intelligence. It took this action after President Ford and CIA Director George Bush urged that the figure be omitted from the final report for national security reasons.

A blank space appeared in the printed report where the figure should have been, but other material in the document permitted the reader to compute that a gross figure for intelligence, including the armed forces components, was $10 billion to $11 billion annually and that the aggregate budgets of the CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and the national reconnaissance program ran about $4.5 billion.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., vice chairman of the committee, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., did not sign the report. Tower said he felt that the recommendations, "if enacted into law, could endanger America's security."

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., signed the report but said he disagreed with several recommendations.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi also appeared at Monday's meeting in an effort, according to a committee source, to get the committee to relax stringent electronic surveillance recommendations it has made in the upcoming domestic report.

The portion of the report made public concentrated on areas that include the following:

—The committee found that "presidents and administrators have made excessive, and at times, self-defeating use of covert action" and that its use is now so routine (900 separate operations between 1961 and 1975) that it had "bureaucratic momentum of its own."

Though the committee gave "serious consideration" to recommending a "total ban" on covert activity, it concluded that the country must have such a capability for "extraordinary circumstances involving grave threats to United States national security."

—The committee found that many covert actions, clandestine intelligence gathering techniques and counterintelligence operations had been launched without any formal approval mechanism at work, and little or no record of who approved them. It called for formalization of decision making in these areas that would leave a "paper trail" on the decisions and end the practice of "plausible deniability."

—The committee found that the CIA circumvented the 1967 presidential ban against covertly supporting and infiltrating educational and philanthropic groups, by moving certain operations abroad or by dealing with individuals.

—The committee found in another area widespread unethical or illegal drug tests being performed on Americans.

PACE Leads Pack For Political Funds

By DICK HOLMAN

Star Staff Writer

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Monday about 40% of primary election candidates failed to file their first campaign finance reports by the 5 p.m. deadline.

Meanwhile, those reports filed on time showed that some hopefuls are rolling in the money, with the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE) leading the contributor pack.

PACE, the political arm of the Nebraska State Education Association, reported a $49,247 balance from teacher assessments, and $11,402 in other receipts, for a $60,649 pool to award NSEA-endorsed candidates.

Of that total, 21 candidates for the Legislature, University of Nebraska Regents and State Board of Education got part of $9,150 that PACE had doled out as of Monday. State Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood got the smallest amount, $100; Frances Ohmsted, a Unicameral candidate from Guide Rock, got the most — $1,000.

PACE contributed another $8,665 to individuals in races not covered by the filing statute (e.g., local school boards, technical community college boards, for a donation total of $17,815).

Another candidate support committee, the Nebraska Political Action Council (N-PAC), reported $9,804 from contributors statewide, including firms in publishing, motorcycles, insurance, lumber, construction, foods, banks, mills, and steel, each for $100 or less. Schmitt got $200 of N-PAC donations and $1,100 more was divided among several candidates.

Beermann said although there's no penalty for large finance data reporting, willful refusal or failure by a candidate can result in denial of the election certificate or — for losers — a "day in court."

Minutes before the deadline Monday, incumbent state senators who hadn't filed included Irving Wiltse of Falls City, Orval Keyes of Springfield, Ernest Chambers of Omaha, John R. Murphy of South Sioux City, James Dickinson of Millard, Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, Herb Duis of Gothenburg and Robert Clark of Sidney.

In other races, four of 12 State Board of Education candidates failed to file; for regent, 7 of 15; Public Service Commission, 6 of 11; Nebraska Public Power District, 2 of 9, and Omaha Public Power District, 4 of 11.

Among Lincoln state senators, Steve Fowler reported $5,686 from 350 donors — including $500 from PACE and $200 from the Lancaster County Democratic Party — a sum higher than his $4,800 annual salary.

Of Fowler's opponents, former state education commissioner Cecil Stanley reported donations of $2,204, and Don Stenberg, $1,771. Stenberg also was the only candidate to file a financial disclosure form under provisions of the new "Sunshine" law, although they aren't yet in effect.

In another Lincoln race, incumbent Shirley Marsh reported $2,038 in receipts including $500 from PACE; Ronald B. Wylie got $447 in contributions; Sandra Kinsey, $466; and William E. (Pat) Daugherty, $1,275.

Contributions for Lincolmites seeking $20,000 Public Service Commission seats included Harold D. Simpson, $802; Sam Schwartzkopf, $1,170; Ruth M. Swanson, $50, and Joyce Durand, $1,585. Incumbent Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus reported $3,895 on hand before expenses.

NU Regents candidates generally reported low-financed campaigns. They ranged from zero income/zero expenses (except for $25 filing fees) by incumbents Robert J. Prokop of Wilber, Robert R. Koefoot of Grand Island and James Moylan of Omaha, to a high of $846 bolstered by a $600 PACE donation to challenger Alton C. Kienker of Grand Island.

Dee Everitt of Lincoln reported $492 in contributions to her State Board of Education challenge of incumbent Frank Landis, who had not filed on Monday.

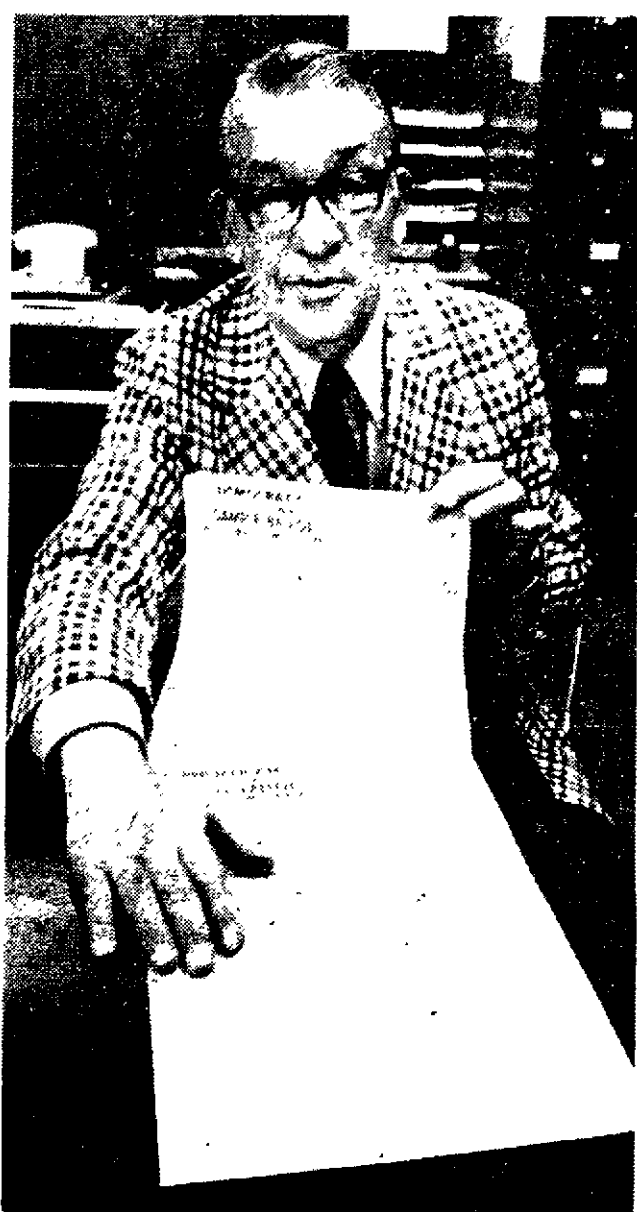

Unicameral candidate Fritz Stanek of Omaha reported $500 PACE and $200 Transportation Political Education League (Cleveland) contributions in his $1,665 total. In the most lively report of activities, Stanek listed expenses for ads, door prizes, signs, rallies, dinners, raffles, tickets, a bowling banquet and a "round of drinks."

Stanek seeks the seat held for 17 years by retiring State Sen. William Skarda in south Omaha's 7th District. Another hopeful, Patrick L. Venditte, surpassed Stanek with $1,825 in donations in what appears will be an expensive race.

In Omaha's District 9 to replace retiring John Cavanaugh, Sam J. Howell III reported $1,786 in contributions; William Brennan, $1,335; Robert E. Kralik, $200; Pat Shafer, $2,085 (including $500 from PACE); and Thomas A. Fleming, $625.

Another high-spending legislative race in the 19th District shows William R. Hengstler of Creighton garnering $1,655, and opponent Elroy M. Heffner of Coleridge with $2,331. They hope to succeed retiring Speaker Jules Burch.

Going up against Loran Schmitt, who raised $7,575, Erwin F. Matzka brought in $63.10 from a bake sale. He listed no expenses.

Ballot's A Big One

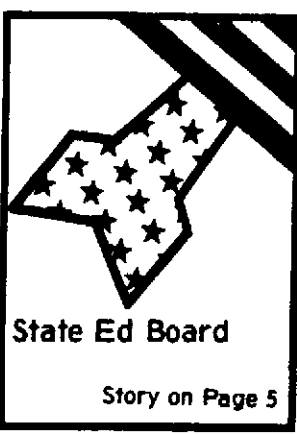

The more than 100 candidates for delegates to each of the national presidential conventions has added a long dimension to this year's primary ballot. County Election Commissioner Bill Davidson holds up the arm-full of names that county residents can choose from on May 11. The delegate list alone will take up seven pages on the computer punch card ballots for each party, Davidson said. (Star Photo)

Friday Last Day Of Registration

Voters have until 6 p.m. Friday to register for the May 11 primary election.

Individuals may register at offices of county clerks, election commissioners, and additional places in counties with locations noted in local newspapers.

Persons already registered to vote need not re-register unless they have moved from one precinct to another, from one county to another, or have changed their names.

Highlights From Report On Intelligence Given

Covert Action —

"The CIA has conducted some 900 major or sensitive covert action projects plus several thousand smaller projects since 1961... the continued use of covert action techniques within or against a foreign society can have unintended consequences that sometimes subvert long-term goals." (Story on Page 2.)

Paramilitary Operations—

"Covert paramilitary operations are a special, extreme form of covert action. (They) frequently amount to making war." The committee found that recently, apart from Angola, such activities have been at a very low level.

Use Of Academic Community—

"The CIA is using several hundred administrators, faculty members and graduate students engaged in teaching who provide leads and make introductions for intelligence purposes and occasionally write books and other material to be used for propaganda purposes abroad... these academics are located in over 100 American colleges, universities and related institutes."

Use Of Books —

Before 1967, the CIA sponsored, subsidized or produced more than 1,000 books; in 1967 alone, the CIA published or subsidized more than 200 books.

Domestic Fallout —

"Covert media operations can result in manipulating or incidentally misleading the American public... For example, a book written for an English-speaking foreign audience by one CIA operative was reviewed favorably by another CIA agent in The New York Times."

Use Of U.S. Journalists —

New guidelines issued in February stopped the practice of paid or contractual relationships. The CIA maintains a network of several hundred foreign individuals who provide intelligence. "Approximately 50 of the assets are individual American journalists..." (Story on Page 2)

Use Of U.S. Religious Personnel —

The CIA informed the committee only 21 such individuals ever participated in covert action or clandestine collection of intelligence.

Murder Charge Reduced; Hoppes, 23, Pleads Guilty

By GORDON WINTERS

Star Staff Writer

Following plea bargaining, Tom Hoppes, 23, pleaded guilty Monday to second degree murder in the strangulation death of his wife Ann.

Hoppes had been charged originally with first degree murder after his wife's body was found Jan. 7 under a foot of ice in Pawnee Lake.

The guilty plea was accepted by Lancaster District Court Judge Dale Fahrbruch after proceedings that lasted 55 minutes.

An unusual wrinkle during the courtroom session was that Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners was sworn as a witness to relate the facts in the case.

Hoppes and his attorney Paul Galtier waived potential objections of hearsay and other grounds.

Lahners said Hoppes had gone with a bottle of wine to talk to his wife where she was working in Andrews Hall on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln downtown campus on the evening of Dec. 30.

After a time the pair, who were in the process of getting a divorce, began to argue and finally Hoppes began striking his wife, Lahners said.

Hoppes believes that his wife died from a blow to her throat, but a pathologist who conducted an autopsy on her body said bleeding in her voicebox was produced by strangulation, Lahners testified.

Several questions on the death of his wife were put directly to Hoppes by Judge Fahrbruch.

"What did you strike her with?" Fahrbruch asked "With my fist," Hoppes replied in a steady, low voice.

Lahners also testified that Hoppes led law enforcement officers to the place where he had dumped his wife's body into the lake from a bridge.

Her body, with an auto chain wrapped twice around her neck, through a wheel run and around her body, was later retrieved from beneath the ice by scuba divers.

Much of the time in the courtroom was occupied by Fahrbruch's questioning Hoppes and Galtier to determine if Hoppes was aware of the rights he was waiving and if he was waiving those rights without coercion.

The plea bargaining in the case emerged under questioning from Fahrbruch. Lahners said that he agreed to reduce the charge in return for the guilty plea.

Lahners said there was also discussion of dropping other felony charges of possession of more than one pound of marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture and concealing stolen property that are pending against Hoppes.

Lahners said, however, that he had made no commitment to Hoppes to drop the charges. Attorney Galtier agreed, but said it nonetheless is his hope that the charges will be dropped.

Fahrbruch delayed sentencing until after a pre-sentence investigation report. The charge carries a penalty of ten years in the Nebraska Penal Complex to life imprisonment.

Council Finally Shuts Off Water Fight; 'ZZ' Okayed

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

It took most of the afternoon and evening to do it, but City Council members and the administration finally compromised on another water rate plan Monday night.

The vote was unanimous to adopt Alternate "Double Z," which replaced Alternate "Z," adopted last week, which replaced a host of other options considered lately by the lawmakers.

Mayor Helen Boosalis promised to sign the resolution setting out the rate schedules "as soon as I get the pen in my hand."

The mayor told reporters she would have vetoed the "Z" plan had the council not revamped the rates. Mrs. Boosalis previously had declined to say whether she would have vetoed the "Z" plan, which was adopted by the council on a 4 to 3 vote.

The latest plan, which officials promised is the last one, is more equitable to residential users, both the mayor and council members agreed.

Under plan "Z," residential customers, who use 53.7% of the water, would have picked up 60.5% of the cost. Under plan "ZZ," residential users will pay only 55.4%.

Under plan "Z," non-residential customers, who use 46.3% of the water, would have paid 39.5% of the cost instead of the 44.6% they will pay under the new rates.

The newest water rates should produce $4.96 million in revenue annually, just short of the $5 million the water department says it needs to expand and maintain the system.

The lawmakers kept the increasing block formula for residential users and added a block step to small commercial customers, which were changed

a flat rate under the "Z" plan.

Under "ZZ," homeowners will pay 25 cents for the first 808 cubic feet of water consumed each month, instead of 500 cubic feet under "Z." Customers will pay 31 cents for 800 to 2,300 cubic feet and 39 cents for anything over that.

Businesses will pay 25 cents for all water used up to the first 800 cubic feet, if they use less than 12 million cubic feet of water a year. Anything over that will cost 31 cents.

Businesses using between 12 and 54 million cubic feet a year will pay 23 cents under "ZZ" instead of 20 cents proposed under the "Z" plan. Goodyear, the only industry using more than 54 million cubic feet annually, will pay 18 cents this year. However, over a three-year period, Goodyear's rates will be increased until the firm pays the same as those businesses in the middle non-residential bracket.

Gap Widening Between Male, Female Incomes

Washington (UPI) — Although women have made substantial gains in terms of life expectancy, education and employment since the turn of the century, the income gap between men and women continues to widen, the government reported Monday.

In a 90-page statistical study on the progress of women in the 20th Century, the Census Bureau found employment for females has doubled since 1950 while the number of working men has increased by only one-fourth.

However, the bureau said that during the same period the average annual income for a fulltime working man rose more rapidly than it did for a female worker.

In 1974 the median income for a woman was $6,957. This represents only 57% of the $12,152 the typical American male took home that year.

Four years earlier the average working woman made $5,440 or 50% of the $10,880 median income for men.

That means, in essence, that although pay and employment opportunities have improved considerably for women in recent years, they have not advanced as strongly as they have for men.

The bureau said this is reflected in part by the fact that most working women continue to be employed in "clerical, operative and service positions," while men receive more blue-collar jobs.

Although women run about 13% of all American households, families headed by a woman represent 46% of the nation's poverty-level families, the bureau said.

But it has not been all bad news for American women.

Life expectancy has improved more for women than for men in this century. A woman born in 1975 can expect to live to the age of 75, a full eight years longer than a man.

Furthermore, the bureau said this trend is likely to persist with the life expectancy of women continuing to rise faster than it does for males in the years to come.

In the field of education, census reported, women are also making major gains. Since 1950, college enrollment for females has grown faster than it has for males. Women now make up 44% of the nation's college students, a substantial improvement over earlier figures.

Covert Action Curb Recommended

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Activities, concluding its 15-month long investigation, Monday urged Congress to adopt a new, omnibus law covering foreign and military intelligence gathering that would create charters for the major agencies and sharply limit the use of covert action as a tool of foreign policy.

In a report that had few disclosures, the committee disclosed that the United States has conducted some 900 major or sensitive covert operations in the last 15 years alone. As one check on such actions, it recommended that Congress be informed in advance of proposed covert operations in the future. In one proposal for structural reform, it urged that the director of central intelligence be given authority over the entire intelligence community — to set the overall budget, allocate resources, and determine national intelligence requirements for all agencies including the military.

The legislative future of its recommendations is far from clear. The committee made "recommendations" for legislation by Congress but will not introduce the bills itself. Instead, when a permanent oversight committee is created it would take these recommendations as the basis for a legislative package.

The new law is needed, the committee said, because "Congress has failed to provide the necessary statutory guidelines to insure that intelligence agencies carry out their missions in accord with constitutional processes." It would, in effect, recast the National Security Act of 1947 which created the modern intelligence system.

The new law, the committee said, should set "clearly defined prohibitions or limitations" on intelligence-gathering techniques and operations, define the roles of each intelligence agency and "set forth the basic purposes of national intelligence activities."

"This revision should be given the highest priority by the Intelligence Oversight Committees of Congress, acting in consultation with the executive branch," the committee said.

The proposal is the centerpiece of a 474-page report on foreign and military intelligence which culminates an investigation begun in January 1975. The committee is expected to make public a report on its domestic intelligence findings this week.

Monday's report carried 87 separate recommendations for statutory or administrative change based upon "findings of fact" in areas ranging from drug tests on humans to covert operations in Chile.

At the request of the intelligence agencies, the committee withheld three chapters of its report, on "Cover," "Espionage" and "Budgetary Oversight" from the public, and deleted sections on covert action and intelligence operations of the State Department. A staff spokesman said this amounted to some 200 pages, but the material would be available to be read by the 100 senators.

The committee also voted 6 to 5 in a closed meeting Monday to ask the full Senate whether it could release the total budget figure for U.S. intelligence. It took this action after President Ford and CIA Director George Bush urged that the figure be omitted from the final report for national security reasons.

A blank space appeared in the printed report where the figure should have been, but other material in the document permitted the reader to compute that a gross figure for intelligence, including the armed forces components, was $10 billion to $11 billion annually and that the aggregate budgets of the CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency and the national reconnaissance program ran about $4.5 billion.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., vice chairman of the committee, and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., did not sign the report. Tower said he felt that the recommendations, "if enacted into law, could endanger America's security."

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., signed the report but said he disagreed with several recommendations.

Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi also appeared at Monday's meeting in an effort, according to a committee source, to get the committee to relax stringent electronic surveillance recommendations it has made in the upcoming domestic report.

The portion of the report made public concentrated on areas that include the following:

—The committee found that "presidents and administrators have made excessive, and at times, self-defeating use of covert action" and that its use is now so routine (900 separate operations between 1961 and 1975) that it had "bureaucratic momentum of its own."

Though the committee gave "serious consideration" to recommending a "total ban" on covert activity, it concluded that the country must have such a capability for "extraordinary circumstances involving grave threats to United States national security."

—The committee found that many covert actions, clandestine intelligence gathering techniques and counterintelligence operations had been launched without any formal approval mechanism at work, and little or no record of who approved them. It called for formalization of decision making in these areas that would leave a "paper trail" on the decisions and end the practice of "plausible deniability."

—The committee found that the CIA circumvented the 1967 presidential ban against covertly supporting and infiltrating educational and philanthropic groups, by moving certain operations abroad or by dealing with individuals.

—The committee found in another area widespread unethical or illegal drug tests being performed on Americans.

PACE Leads Pack For Political Funds

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Monday about 40% of primary election candidates failed to file their first campaign finance reports by the 5 p.m. deadline.

Meanwhile, those reports filed on time showed that some hopefuls are rolling in the money, with the Political Action Committee for Education (PACE) leading the contributor pack.

PACE, the political arm of the Nebraska State Education Association, reported a $49,247 balance from teacher assessments, and $11,402 in other receipts, for a $60,649 pool to award NSEA-endorsed candidates.

Of that total, 21 candidates for the Legislature, University of Nebraska Regents and State Board of Education got part of $9,150 that PACE had doled out as of Monday. State Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood got the smallest amount, $100; Frances Ohmsted, a Unicameral candidate from Guide Rock, got the most — $1,000.

PACE contributed another $8,665 to individuals in races not covered by the filing statute (e.g., local school boards, technical community college boards, for a donation total of $17,815).

Another candidate support committee, the Nebraska Political Action Council (N-PAC), reported $9,804 from contributors statewide, including firms in publishing, motorcycles, insurance, lumber, construction, foods, banks, mills, and steel, each for $100 or less. Schmit got $200 of N-PAC donations and $1,100 more was divided among several candidates.

Beermann said although there's no penalty for large finance data reporting, willful refusal or failure by a candidate can result in denial of the election certificate or — for losers — a "day in court."

Minutes before the deadline Monday, incumbent state senators who hadn't filed included Irving Wiltse of Falls City, Orval Keyes of Springfield, Ernest Chambers of Omaha, John R. Murphy of South Sioux City, James Dickinson of Millard, Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, Herb Duis of Gothenberg and Robert Clark of Sidney.

In other races, four of 12 State Board of Education candidates failed to file; for regent, 7 of 15; Public Service Commission, 6 of 11; Nebraska Public Power District, 2 of 9, and Omaha Public power District, 4 of 11.

Among Lincoln state senators, Steve Fowler reported $5,686 from 350 donors — including $500 from PACE and $200 from the Lancaster County Democratic Party — a sum higher than his $4,800 annual salary.

Of Fowler's opponents, former state education commissioner Cecil Stanley reported donations of $2,204, and Don Stenberg, $1,771. Stenberg also was the only candidate to file a financial disclosure form under provisions of the new "Sunshine" law, although they aren't yet in effect.

In another Lincoln race, incumbent Shirley Marsh reported $2,038 in receipts including $500 from PACE; Ronald B. Wylie got $447 in contributions; Sandra Kinsey, $465; and William E. (Pat) Daugherty, $1,275.

Contributions for Lincolniters seeking $20,000 Public Service Commission seats included Harold D. Simpson, $802; Sam Schwartzkopf, $1,170; Ruth M. Swanson, $50, and Joyce Durand, $1,585. Incumbent Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus reported $3,895 on hand before expenses.

NU Regents candidates generally reported low-financed campaigns. They ranged from zero income/zero expenses (except for $25 filing fees) by incumbents Robert J. Prokop of Wilber, Robert R. Koefoot of Grand Island and James Moylan of Omaha, to a high of $846 bolstered by a $600 PACE donation to challenger Alton C. Kienker of Grand Island.

Dee Everitt of Lincoln reported $492 in contributions to her State Board of Education challenge of incumbent Frank Landis, who had not filed on Monday.

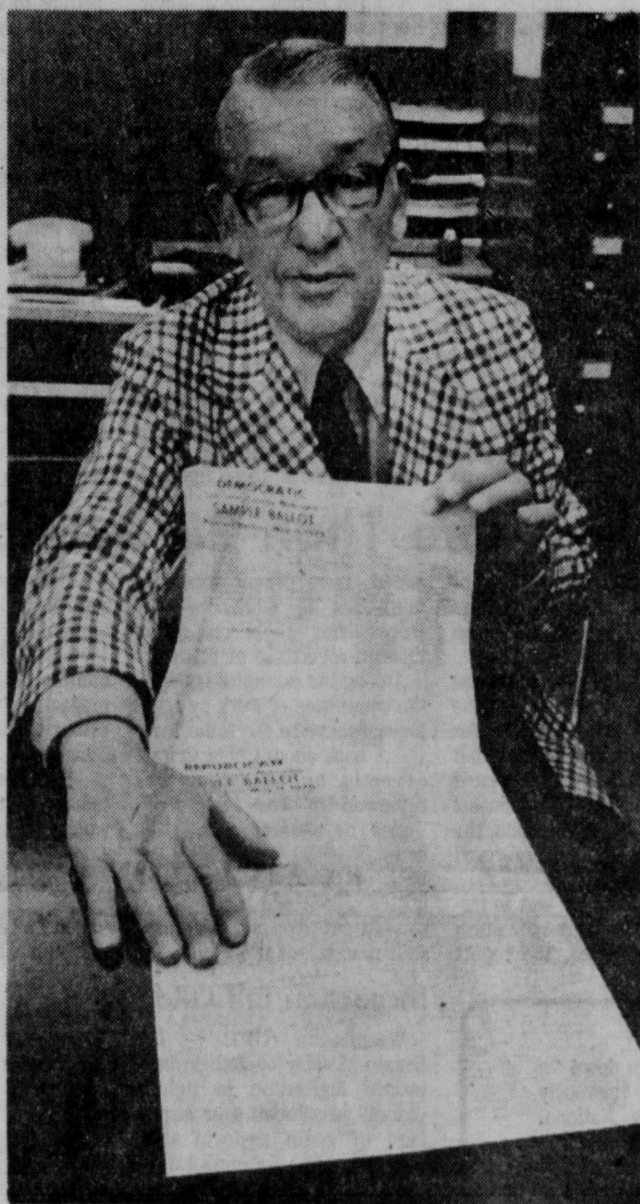

Unicameral candidate Fritz Stanek of Omaha reported $500 PACE and $200 Transportation Political Education League (Cleveland) contributions in his $1,695 total. In the most lively report of activities, Stanek listed expenses for ads, door prizes, signs, rallies, dinners, raffles, tickets, a bowling banquet and a "round of drinks."

Stanek seeks the seat held for 17 years by retiring State Sen. William Skarda in south Omaha's 7th District. Another hopeful, Patrick L. Venditte, surpassed Stanek with $1,825 in donations in what appears will be an expensive race.

In Omaha's District 9 to replace retiring John Cavanaugh, Sam J. Howell III reported $1,786 in contributions; William Brennan, $1,335; Robert E. Kralik, $200; Pat Shafer, $2,085 (including $500 from PACE), and Thomas A. Fleming, $625.

Another high-spending legislative race in the 19th District shows William R. Hengstler of Creighton garnering $1,655, and opponent Elroy M. Heifner of Coleridge with $2,331. They hope to succeed retiring Speaker Jules Burbach.

Going up against Loran Schmit, who raised $7,575, Erwin F. Matulka brought in $63.10 from a bake sale. He listed no expenses.

Hoppes had been charged originally with first degree murder after his wife's body was found Jan. 7 under a foot of ice in Pawnee Lake.

The guilty plea was accepted by Lancaster District Court Judge Dale Fahrbruch after proceedings that lasted 55 minutes.

An unusual wrinkle during the courtroom session was that Lancaster County Attorney Ron Lahners was sworn as a witness to relate the facts in the case.

Hoppes and his attorney Paul Galter waived potential objections of hearsay and other grounds.

Lahners said Hoppes had gone with a bottle of wine to talk to his wife where she was working in Andrews Hall on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln downtown campus on the evening of Dec. 30.

After a time the pair, who were in the process of getting a divorce, began to argue and finally Hoppes began striking his wife, Lahners said.

Hoppes believes that his wife died from a blow to her throat, but a pathologist who conducted an autopsy on her body said bleeding in her voicebox was produced by strangulation, Lahners testified.

Several questions on the death of his wife were put directly to Hoppes by Judge Fahrbruch.

"What did you strike her with?" Fahrbruch asked.

"With my fist," Hoppes replied in a steady, low voice.

Lahners also testified that Hoppes led law enforcement officers to the place where he had dumped his wife's body into the lake from a bridge.

Her body, with an auto chain wrapped twice around her neck, through a wheel rim and around her body, was later retrieved from beneath the ice by scuba divers.

Much of the time in the courtroom was occupied by Fahrbruch's questioning Hoppes and Galter to determine if Hoppes was aware of the rights he was waiving and if he was waiving those rights without coercion.

The plea bargaining in the case emerged under questioning from Fahrbruch. Lahners said that he agreed to reduce the charge in return for the guilty plea.

Lahners said there was also discussion of dropping other felony charges of possession of more than one pound of marijuana, possession of marijuana with intent to manufacture and concealing stolen property that are pending against Hoppes.

Lahners said, however, that he had made no commitment to Hoppes to drop the charges. Attorney Galter agreed, but said it nonetheless is his hope that the charges will be dropped.

Fahrbruch delayed sentencing until after a pre-sentence investigation report. The charge carries a penalty of ten years in the Nebraska Penal Complex to life imprisonment.

Council Finally Shuts Off Water Fight; 'ZZ' Okayed

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

It took most of the afternoon and evening to do it, but City Council members and the administration finally compromised on another water rate plan Monday night.

The vote was unanimous to adopt Alternate "Double Z", which replaced Alternate "Z" adopted last week, which replaced a host of other options considered lately by the lawmakers.

Mayor Helen Boosalis promised to sign the resolution setting out the rate schedules "as soon as I get the pen in my hand."

The mayor told reporters she would have vetoed the "Z" plan had the council not revamped the rates. Mrs. Boosalis previously had declined to say whether she would have vetoed the "Z" plan, which was adopted by the council on a 4 to 3 vote.

The latest plan, which officials promised is the last one, is more equitable to residential users, both the mayor and council members agreed.

Under plan "Z", residential customers, who use 53.7% of the water, would have picked up 60.5% of the cost. Under plan "ZZ", residential users will pay only 55.4%.

Under plan "Z", non-residential customers, who use 46.3% of the water, would have paid 39.5% of the cost instead of the 44.8% they will pay under the new rates.

The newest water rates should produce $4.96 million in revenue annually, just short of the $5 million the water department says it needs to expand and maintain the system.

The lawmakers kept the increasing block formula for residential users and added a block step to small commercial customers, which were changed

a flat rate under the "Z" plan.

Under "ZZ", homeowners will pay 25 cents for the first 808 cubic feet of water consumed each month, instead of 500 cubic feet under "Z". Customers will pay 31 cents for 800 to 2,300 cubic feet and 39 cents for anything over that.

Businesses will pay 25 cents for all water used up to the first 800 cubic feet, if they use less than 12 million cubic feet of water a year. Anything over that will cost 31 cents.

Businesses using between 12 and 54 million cubic feet a year will pay 23 cents under "ZZ", instead of 20 cents proposed under the "Z" plan. Goodyear, the only industry using more than 54 million cubic feet annually, will pay 18 cents this year. However, over a three-year period, Goodyear's rates will be increased until the firm pays the same as those businesses in the middle non-residential bracket.

Gap Widening Between Male, Female Incomes

Washington (UPI) — Although women have made substantial gains in terms of life expectancy, education and employment since the turn of the century, the income gap between men and women continues to widen, the government reported Monday.

In a 90-page statistical study on the progress of women in the 20th Century, the Census Bureau found employment for females has doubled since 1950 while the number of working men has increased by only one-fourth.

However, the bureau said that during the same period the average annual income for a fulltime working man rose more rapidly than it did for a female worker.

In 1974, the median income for a woman was $6,957. This represents only 57% of the $12,152 the typical American male took home that year.

Four years earlier, the average working woman made $5,440 or 59% of the $9,184 median income for men.

That means, in essence, that although pay and employment opportunities have improved considerably for women in recent years, they have not advanced as strongly as they have for men.

The bureau said this is reflected in part by the fact that most working women continue to be employed in "clerical, operative and service positions," while men receive more blue-collar jobs.

Although women run about 13% of all American households, families headed by a woman represent 46% of the nation's poverty-level families, the bureau said.

But it has not been all bad news for American women.

Life expectancy has improved more for women than for men in this century. A woman born in 1975 can expect to live to the age of 75, a full eight years longer than a man.

Furthermore, the bureau said this trend is likely to persist with the life expectancy of women continuing to rise faster than it does for males in the years to come.

In the field of education, census reported, women are also making major gains. Since 1950, college enrollment for females has grown faster than it has for males. Women now make up 44% of the nation's college students, a substantial improvement over earlier figures.

U.S. Covert Actions Not 100% Successful, Committee Says

©The New York Times

Washington — The United States has undertaken thousands of covert actions abroad since 1947, including 900 major or sensitive projects in the last 15 years alone, with only partial success and some instances of severe damage to our foreign policy, a report by the Senate Intelligence Committee said Monday.

The report said the 11-member committee considered at one point recommending a ban against all covert actions, but later concluded that the United States must have some covert capability. Only Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who headed the panel, ended up calling for a ban.

"The committee has concluded, however, that the United States should maintain the capability to react through covert action when no other means will suffice to meet extraordinary circumstances involving grave threats to U.S. national security," the committee said.

"Nevertheless, covert action should be considered as an exception to the normal process of government action abroad, rather than a parallel but invisible system in which covert operations are routine," the report said.

The committee investigated covert actions from the creation of the modern intelligence system in 1947 through the present.

The report traced covert actions from a State Department-CIA hybrid in the late 1940s called the Office of Policy Coordination through the formation of a clandestine services section at CIA in 1952 then called the Deputy Directorate for Plans.

The committee said there was no legal authorization for covert action in the 1947 national security act or subsequent laws pertaining to intelligence, but that internal executive orders had increased the powers to conduct covert operations abroad.

The report defined covert actions as those sub rosa efforts — from buying candidates in an election to waging a secret war in Laos — that the United States tries to do secretly.

The early covert actions run by OPC mainly involved giving financial support and encouragement to labor unions, political parties and other groups in Western Europe in the late 1940s as they tried to resist a Communist takeover, the report said.

It was during the Korean War, the report said, that paramilitary covert operations came to the fore. After the Korean War, the report said, a National Security Council directive broadened operations to the entire globe and not simply to areas contiguous to the Soviet Union or China.

This resulted in widespread secret operations in Latin America, Africa and the Far East. Though the committee studied several actions, it publicly discussed only a 10-year effort to stop Marxist Salvador Allende Gossens from becoming president in Chile, efforts to undermine Gen. Sukarno in Indonesia and various political assassination plots, including Operation Mongoose aimed at Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

The committee leveled its strongest criticism at the paramilitary covert actions. "The committee's findings on paramilitary activities suggest that these operations are an anomaly, if not an aberration, of covert action," the report said.

The committee said this was because they are almost impossible to conceal and thus very quickly become overt operations.

"Of the five paramilitary activities studied by the committee, only one appears to have achieved its objectives," the report said. The report did not list those studied, but the committee is known to have taken looks at the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, operations in Laos, South Vietnam and Korea, and earlier operations in Greece.

The committee said Congress had failed, until the passage of the Hughes-Ryan amendment which required the president to report covert activities to Congress, to conduct adequate oversight of covert actions and it also found fault with the mechanism for approving such projects by the executive branch.

It urged that covert actions only be approved in the most dire of circumstances, after full consideration by the National Security Council and after each person in the chain of command had put his views in writing and signed them. This system, in general terms, was called for by President Ford's executive order earlier this year, but the committee wanted the order buttressed by law.

Senators Call For Pinpointing Covert Action Responsibility

©The New York Times

Washington — The recommendations of the Senate Intelligence committee, like the actions taken by President Ford several months ago, seek to strengthen the role of the president and the director of central intelligence in controlling covert operations. They also seek to strengthen the hand of enforcement authorities in dealing with violations of the law.

In the committee report released Monday, however, the senators go much further than Ford in pinpointing responsibility for covert actions and broadening congressional oversight powers.

The philosophy behind the President's executive orders was to make the existing system of policy-making and review more efficient, not to change it. The attitudes underlying the committee's recommendations are that fundamental changes are necessary in the laws, within the executive branch, and in Congress, to ensure that the secret activities of the intelligence community are brought into greater harmony with the requirements of democracy.

"The fundamental issue faced by the committee in its investigation was how the requirements of American democracy can be properly balanced in intelligence matters against the need for secrecy," the report said.

The committee made a number of recommendations that Ford has flatly said he would oppose. These proposals would have the effect of making Congress a virtual co-equal with the president in deciding on covert operations and in drastically reducing the incidence of such secret paramilitary and secret money-passing operations. Among the recommendations:

— Putting into statutes all the intelligence agencies such as the National Security Agency and the Defense Intelligence Agency and all the practices of the Central Intelligence Agency that have been going on without benefit of congressional authorization. Ford wants to retain existing informality and presidential flexibility.

— Bringing counterintelligence and espionage activities, which often have the same effects as covert operations, under high-level policy review and under the law. Ford did not deal with the overlapping character of these operations.

— Requiring prior congressional approval of covert operations. Ford would continue to inform Congress, as now required by law, "in a timely fashion," which has proved to mean after-the-fact.

— Prohibiting by law political assassinations, the overthrow of democratic governments, and the use of newsmen and clergy as agents. Continued use of business covers would be permitted but under close review. Ford, again, desires policy flexibility.

— Making public the aggregate budget of the intelligence community for congressional approval as required by the Constitution. Ford has said that even publication of the aggregate figure would help foreign powers counter American intelligence programs.

— Give the State Department, and the ambassadors in particular, control over field operations. Ford did not address this problem.

Several principal findings underpinned these proposals, and in some instances, these findings paralleled those of the President. Contrary to Ford, the committee found that Congress does have the constitutional authority to regulate intelligence programs.

Like the President, the committee came to the conclusion that there had been inadequate oversight of intelligence operations within the executive branch, that the vast majority of the some 900 covert actions conducted since 1961 did not go through a formal policy review, and that the director of central intelligence had real authority only over his own CIA and not the best of the intelligence community.

The report called "desirable" the President's upgrading of the 40 Committee, the sub-Cabinet level group that advised the President on covert actions in the past, to a Cabinet-level operations advisory group. While such advice should be made more formal, the report warned that Cabinet officials might not have the time to do this job properly. The report urged the President to explicitly make the National Security Council his principal intelligence adviser.

The report also commended the President for enhancing the powers of the various inspectors general to internally police the intelligence community, particularly in giving them investigative powers and immediate access to legal redress. The committee went further, however, in detailing how the inspectors general could enforce the laws without waiting for abuses.

Also supported was the President's intent to increase the authority of the director of central intelligence, a post now held by George Bush. After documenting a history of considerable duplication and even triplification of effort, the report urged making the director the head of the intelligence community in fact as well as in name, by giving him the power of controlling the overall intelligence budget.

The report said the President's new Committee on Foreign Intelligence with the director at its head is "a step in the right direction." It cautioned, however, that the words of the President's order to the director to "manage" and "coordinate," are too general.

The report found the President's new Intelligence Oversight Board "to be long overdue," but maintained that it should not be considered as a substitute for greater congressional oversight.

The President's only recommendation to Congress was to form a joint House-Senate Intelligence Oversight Committee with no real additional powers. The Senate report opted for separate Senate and House oversight committees with considerably enlarged powers to approve, to know, and to investigate.

On the right-to-know and make information public, the report drew a distinction between protection of valid secrets and valid disclosure. The administration's approach has centered almost entirely on legal penalties for unlawful disclosure.

The committee's studies also left a number of issues for future consideration: whether the analytical and information-gathering arm of the CIA should be separated from its operational arms; whether the director should remain as head of the CIA as well; and how the new Senate oversight committee would work with other committees concerned with intelligence.

Church Committee Reports CIA Plans To Keep More Than 25 Journalists As Agents

©The New York Times

Washington — The Central Intelligence Agency plans to continue to employ as agents more than 25 journalists or other representatives of American news organizations, according to the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, revealed Monday that those persons were not covered by a public pledge made in February by CIA Director George Bush that the agency would stop hiring correspondents "accredited" by American publications and other news organizations.

The disclosure was published in a section of the committee's report on foreign and military intelligence activities entitled "Covert Relationships with the United States Media."

The committee did not identify the journalists involved or their organizations, but a staff member said privately that many of the individuals were in executive positions for American news outlets. The panel recommended enactment of a law precluding the agency's "operational use" of any person regularly involved in writing, editing or setting policy for U.S. media organizations.

It said it was "concerned that the use of American journalists and media organizations for clandestine operations (was) a threat to the integrity of the press."

The report cited many instances in which the efforts of CIA agents acting abroad as journalists were printed in domestic publications.

The committee said it was aware other countries made use of "the international media" for propaganda purposes and that the U.S. public was not insulated from such efforts. The strongest defense against propaganda, the report said, is a "free and vigorous" press.

The most effective way to respond to the use of such propaganda abroad, the report added, is to permit American journalists to work "without jeopardizing their credibility through covert use of them."

Among the examples noted by the committee of work by agent journalists were the following:

— A book about China written covertly by an agent was reviewed in The New York Times by another agent. The committee did not identify the book or the reviewer. A committee source said the reviewer was an academician and not a staff member of the Times.

— The agency paid $170,000 a year for publication of a magazine in South Vietnam in 1974 and 1975. The South Vietnamese Embassy distributed the magazine to Americans, including all members of Congress.

— Two news services maintained by the CIA in Europe were subscribed to by major American newspapers. According to the report, "the CIA made a senior official at the major United States daily aware that the CIA controlled these two press services."

— The "Penkovskiy Papers," a book purported to be based on the reports of an executed Soviet spy, was actually written by CIA agents. It was published in the United States by Doubleday and Co. in 1964 and became a commercial success. The report said the publisher did not know of the agency's involvement.

In most cases, the report said, American news organizations were not aware that contributors were CIA agents.

Anderson Lists Priorities As Insurance, Employment

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Democratic congressional candidate Pauline Anderson of Lincoln Monday listed national health insurance and a national commitment to full employment among her goals.

Mrs. Anderson spoke briefly to a rain-spattered gathering of supporters as she opened her mobile campaign headquarters, a red model caboose on wheels.

Gov. J. James Exon joined in the ceremony, predicting that the 1st District Democratic candidate will produce "one of the most active and interesting campaigns you've ever seen."

Mrs. Anderson is unopposed in the May 11 primary, and will oppose Republican Congressman Charles Thone in the November general election.

Press reports indicate that "no one is giving her much chance of winning" in the autumn, Exon noted.

But he was "given little chance" of winning the governorship in 1970, Exon recalled. "We upset them in 1970, and we're going to upset them in 1976," he declared.

All Democrats need to do is raise some money and "put this gal on the road," the governor said.

Mrs. Anderson said she will campaign in every town in the 1st District before November, beginning with Fremont on Tuesday.

Wally Peterson of Lincoln and Allen O'Donnell of Wayne will serve as campaign co-chairmen, she said.

In addition to health and employment needs, Mrs. Anderson pledged to work for "dependable export markets" for agriculture and tax reform which would simplify forms, limit deductions and equalize burdens.

Mrs. Anderson said legislation should be enacted to allow the elderly to work and draw full earned benefits from Social Security regardless of the resulting income level.

In foreign aid, she said she would work for increased economic and developmental aid for needy nations, but a reduction in military assistance.

Mrs. Anderson proposed a national land use planning conference and said the U.S. should work toward a balanced budget in the 1980s.

As a bicentennial project for Nebraska, she proposed that citizens work to get 76% of the registered voters to the polls in 1976.

Four years ago, about 60% of the registered voters cast ballots, she said.

The American Revolution 200 years ago was "the greatest political happening in the world," she said. "Let's keep it going this year."

School May Have To Get Own Auditor

The Western Technical Community College Area Board may have to find its own auditor, State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson said Monday.

Last week, the board voted to ask the auditor to look over its activity fund, travel fund, equipment purchasing and federal fund account. The audit was recommended by Charles Bensman, president of the Scottsbluff campus.

Johnson said because technical community colleges are not state institutions, his first reaction is to reject the audit request. But he said he will reserve a final decision until after he talks to board officials. "I can't rule it out until I get all the facts," he said.

Johnson indicated his final decision would hinge on whether questions on the use of state money are involved.

"If state funds are involved, we may have some responsibility," the auditor said.

The letter from the board said it wanted an audit of the area office accounts in general, listing no specific problem or account.

Lincolnite Heads Dental Association

Omaha — Dr. Duane M. Hunt of Lincoln was installed Monday as president of the Nebraska Dental Association during the group's annual convention here.

Hunt, a 1952 graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry, succeeds Dr. Donald A. Igel of Omaha.

President-elect of the dental association is Dr. H.C.Q. Nelson of Sidney.

Meanwhile, the dental association voted to continue a policy of requiring dentists to take continuing education courses to retain their licenses.

Last December the association's house of delegates voted 27-14 in favor of further education for licensure. The latest vote was 25-25 with a majority needed to overturn the December action.

All taking part in the debate agreed on the need for continuing education, but opinion split over whether it should be mandatory or voluntary.

A legislative bill that will become law in July will allow the addition of a mandatory continuing education requirement for various health professions. Igel said the vote shows,

"We're willing to place our right to practice on the line to prove we are a true profession concerned for our patients."

The latest vote approved only the concept of mandatory continuing education, Igel said. The house will have to take up a separate resolution containing specifics of a program that might be proposed to the state.

Goodyear, Worker Contract Talks Stalled

With the strike nearly a week old, negotiations between Goodyear and the United Rubber Workers remain stalled, according to Gilbert Laws, URW Local 286 president.

Goodyear's April 16 offer remains unchanged and is "a long way from what we're holding out for," said Laws, just back from talks in Cincinnati.

In addition to cost-of-living increases, the union wants a $1.65-an-hour increase for the contract's first year and 20-cent-an-hour raises for the following two years. It also wants improved pension benefits and elimination of penalties for early retirement.

Lincoln's Goodyear workers receive between $4.60 and $5.50 an hour, averaging $4.80 an hour, Don Wright, Local 286 vice president, said last week.

Goodyear is offering plants which manufacture tires a higher wage scale than those which produce other rubber products, Laws said.

Lincoln's Goodyear plant makes power transmission belts, radiator hoses and tracks for snowmobiles.

Negotiations will resume in Dayton, Ohio, Thursday, he said.

Firm: URW Won't Budge

Cleveland (UPI) — The chairman of the board of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. said Monday the United Rubber Workers Union "has not moved from its basic unrealistic and high inflationary demands," in negotiations with the strike-bound Big Four of the rubber industry.

The URW struck Goodyear, Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., B.F. Goodrich and Uniroyal at midnight April 20 when the three-year contract covering 70,000 workers at 47 plants expired.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for the big four said the striking workers are losing nearly $3.5 million a day in lost wages.

But Goodyear Chairman Charles Pitlor warned the sales and earnings could be adversely affected if the URW strike is not settled soon.

Tefft Biggest Spender; Gauger Collects Most

A candidate for Lancaster County commissioner, Larry Tefft is the biggest spender and his Republican opponent, Jan Gauger, the biggest money raiser; according to financial campaign finance reports filed with the county election commissioner Monday.

Democratic candidate for the 1st District commissioner spot, Ted Kossack, was lowest in both contributions and expenses. He has spent nothing and raised $290 so far, according to his campaign committee report.

Republican Tefft has spent $1,801.12, primarily for yard signs and billboards, according to his campaign statement. Tefft has raised $1,835.31, but the biggest contribution, $1,225.31, came from Tefft's own pocket.

Current County Commissioner Jan Gauger has raised $2,666 — all in contributions of less than $100 each. Her campaign expenses total $1,333.44 so far, primarily for mailings, billboards and supplies.

State law provides that candidates must provide financial statements 15 days before the election, five days before the election and within 20 days after the election.

Durand To Have Advisory Group

Ten prominent Democrats from across the state have agreed to serve on a special advisory committee for Joyce Durand of Lincoln, candidate for the Public Service Commission.

They include former State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, Speaker of the Legislature Jules Burbach of Hartington and former Gov. and Mrs. Frank Morrison of Omaha.

Others: Janet Peterson of Bellevue, Ken Thayer of Denton and Lincolnitess Stanley Sands, Yvonne Hardesty, Bob Milton and Rudy Peralta.

Ms. Durand is a Democratic candidate in the 1st District.

Dyas Leads Zorinsky In Fund-Raising

Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky is running behind his Democratic senatorial opponent, Hess Dyas, in financial support. Zorinsky's finance chairman, George Kubat, said Monday that the mayor's campaign has raised $38,488 and spent $31,240.

A $100-per-couple fund-raising dinner in Omaha Monday night and other contributions should raise the total receipts to at least $45,000, Kubat said.

Zorinsky has budgeted between $40,000 and $50,000 for his primary election campaign.

As of last week, the Dyas campaign had raised about $64,000 and hopes to add at least $30,000 to that total before the May 11 primary.

Kubat said the Zorinsky campaign is "on target" for its financial goals.

The largest single expense will be advertising, he said, and most of that is already paid for.

Bill Opposition Charges Denied By McCollister

Omaha (AP) — Two national environmental organizations contend Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Nebr., is leading an attempt to weaken the proposed Toxic Substances Control Act.

If he succeeds, authorities will have difficulty controlling potentially hazardous substances, according to Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth officials.

McCollister said the allegations are false. He said he supports a substitute bill which would offer people and environment more protection and at the same time would avoid "bureaucratic confusion which will paralyze the chemical industry."

The act proposes federal testing and screening of chemicals which might be hazardous. It is aimed at controlling compounds whose effects are not known.

Stenberg Offers Energy Plans

Lincoln legislative candidate Don Stenberg has proposed a comprehensive state program of energy conservation and research.

Stenberg advocates tax incentives to encourage insulation of buildings, purchase of state buildings and equipment based on life cycle costing, and required instruction on energy conservation in the public schools.

WASHINGTON — A couple of years ago, it didn't seem possible that the Democrats could blow the presidential election of 1976 — and they still may not be able to do it — but they're trying.

This is a very dicey strategy, for the independent voters now outnumber even the registered Democrats, and Carter clearly has appeal across party lines. He has demonstrated the one thing any candidate of either party has to have to win the presidency — an ability to win the commitment of many of the uncommitted voters.

We cannot tell from the primary elections so far how wide or deep Carter's support is. Only about a quarter of the eligible voters have gone to the polls in the state contests, but two things we do know:

First, Carter has won most of the head-on confrontations with the other announced candidates, and second, his supporters are either fiercely loyal to him personally or hostile to the Democratic Party candidates and pro-Democratic political and labor leaders who oppose him.

This is the dilemma that is now dividing the Democratic Party. For Carter may not have enough support to regain the White House for the Democrats after eight years, but if they dish him out of the nomination by party and labor manipulation, his supporters may very well vote for Ford rather than Humphrey and keep the Republicans in the White House.

In fairness to the people and organizations trying to stop Carter, many of them obviously believe that Humphrey would be a better president — more experienced than Carter on both domestic and foreign affairs.

If you could get an honest secret vote of all members of Congress and even all the leading members of the Ford administration, including President Ford, about the Democrat best qualified to be president, if the Republicans didn't win, there is little doubt that Humphrey would win their votes by a large majority.

But there are other considerations. An election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future. Half of the people alive in the world today are now under 25 years of age. Both at home and abroad, people are looking to Washington for new beginnings that can deal with the coming world.

This is Carter's strength. He is not a man of the past, or of the right like Ford, or of the left like Humphrey. He is at least something new, and yet, paradoxically, something very old-fashioned in political, ethical, and even religious terms, and this seems to be touching something deep and enduring in the mind of many voters.

The guess here is that Carter's faith and character may be the "sleeper" in this election: It is not only that he is somebody new in a country that is disillusioned with the old, but that he believes in something in the American ideal we have lost.

Hubert Humphrey is going to have to deal with this at some point or ignore Carter and risk the resentment of Carter's supporters. He is not doing either now.

Humphrey says he is standing aside and leaving the outcome of the Democratic presidential nomination to his party, but he is not really standing aside. He is showing up in the critical primary states. He has been appearing at the labor rallies in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. He is deeply involved in the "Stop-Carter" movement, and if he succeeds, he will have to deal with the consequences of Carter's resentful backers.

Humphrey is betting on the power of the political and labor union leaders of the Democratic Party, and on programs of full employment and federal medical assistance.

Carter is appealing, not primarily to economic but to philosophic remedies. He is saying that we cannot solve our personal problems at home or abroad by talking merely about budgets and the Gross National Product, but that we have to find unity and peace closer to the intimate places of the hearts and minds of our own people.

We have never had a debate quite like this since Woodrow Wilson ran for the presidency. Carter, another outsider, doesn't speak as eloquently as Wilson, but he is getting at the same thing — at the moral apathy and spiritual bewilderment of the nation.

With one difference. Carter combines his philosophy with the toughest political organization and most devoted team of volunteers seen in national politics in a long time. He is Mayor Daley of Chicago in the binding of a hymn book, and the Democratic Party establishment is going to have to accept him or come to terms with him — or face the loss of the election. —

The Old Hidden Tax Trick

In the debate over changes in Lincoln water rates, one argument is deserving of comment no matter what formula finally is adopted by the city.

We have heard over and over again from proponents of a rate schedule which calls for lower rates for non-residential customers that no matter how much you charge business and industry, consumers will wind up paying the bill anyway because such production costs will be passed on.

It is better for the little guy, accordingly for consumers (in this case, homeowners) to subsidize industry up front by bearing more of the water system revenue burden, than to end up bearing it in the long run through passed-on costs which take the form of hidden taxes.

— We think that argument is a bunch of bunk.

The argument over setting a water rate schedule should center on what is fair, not over what might or might not be passed on as a cost of doing business in a supposedly competitive economic system.

If non-residential customers are to be given a cheaper water rate it should be because there is proof that it costs less to supply said customers with water, or as recognition of the stimulus such customers give the economy by providing jobs. We're not entirely impressed with those arguments, either, but they make more sense than arguing for a rate break for non-residential customers on the basis that if the homeowner-consumer doesn't pay more now, he'll pay a hidden tax later.

Realistically speaking, can you imagine that industry savings from lower water bills would be "passed on" to the consumer in the form of lower prices? Many people would view that as not as likely as an increase in costs being passed on. But that really should be beside the point.

We don't think a rate structure should be based on what some water customers may do in the area of business practices.

Rates should be based on an equitable formula where one class of customer does not subsidize another.

Let the commercial and industrial customers pass on their legitimate costs of doing business as best they can, letting competition come into play.

Spotlight On Africa

Maybe the United States and Africa and Henry Kissinger and the African leaders he will talk to during this two-week trip will learn more about each other, and maybe in the process a more realistic and less dangerous relationship between Africa and the United States will develop.

That is the hope, at any rate, and a trip such as Kissinger is taking can only help in sharpening or clarifying the perceptions each holds of the other.

Kissinger's statements thus far that the U.S. will not supply military aid to any of the black nationalist movements and that the U.S. prefers to channel its political and economic efforts to influence moves to majority rule through established governments may not set too well with militant nationalists and their sympathizers.

But it is a prudent course for this nation to take.

Aside from Israel, we haven't had much success in choosing sides and arming our choice in regional wars.

But Kissinger's recognition that liberation movements must be consulted and that Washington will continue to use its political and economic influence to bring about majority rule should have a healthy effect on efforts to close the U.S.-black Africa gap, if only President Ford or whoever succeeds him will take more definite steps in pressuring for representative government in southern Africa and if American resolve to back the concept of majority rule in Africa is not lost in a sea of domestic conservative political rhetoric.

The U.S. has stubbed its toe in black Africa but has not yet fallen flat on its face. Kissinger's hopes of creating better relationships with African leaders upon which to build a new American policy toward Africa are widely shared.

They are getting into a mess in the struggle between Carter and Humphrey. Many of the elders of their party, backed by the leaders, organization and money of Big Labor, are ganging up on Carter. They are trying to be clever at a time when the people of the country are sick of clever presidents, and longing for somebody new and moderate.

Court Backs One-Woman Stand

WASHINGTON — Dorothy Gautreaux had more faith in the system than most of us: enough to sue the federal government and enough to believe she could win.

But Dorothy Gautreaux died before the Supreme Court finally got around to ruling last week — unanimously — that she had been wronged by Washington nearly 10 years ago.

It was in 1966 that Dorothy Gautreaux and other black residents of Chicago sued the Department of Housing and Urban Development for letting city aldermen get away with using federal tax money to build segregated public housing. The city's Mayor Daley's city council machine had a simple system: They would merely veto black-occupied public housing units scheduled to be built in white neighborhoods and vice versa, and in each instance they would cite a myriad of non-reasons, none related to the truth.

What emerged was an undeniable pattern of blatant segregation in Chicago's public housing. And because Mayor Daley is to presidents what the gun lobby is to Congress, HUD let Chicago get away with breaking the law.

Dorothy Gautreaux and her friends did what John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford couldn't do: They held their ground and stared Dick Daley down until the Supreme Court finally made him blink.

But Daley isn't the only one Dorothy Gautreaux had blinking when the 8-0 decision in her favor was handed down Tuesday a week ago. Jimmy Carter, Henry Jackson, Mo Udall and the President himself had their wrists slapped for talking out of both sides of the mouth about ethnic purity, ethnic treasure, neighborhood homogeneity and other meaningless catch phrases designed to capture Archie Bunker's imagination while leaving room for plausible deniability when the candidates are addressing blacks and other minorities.

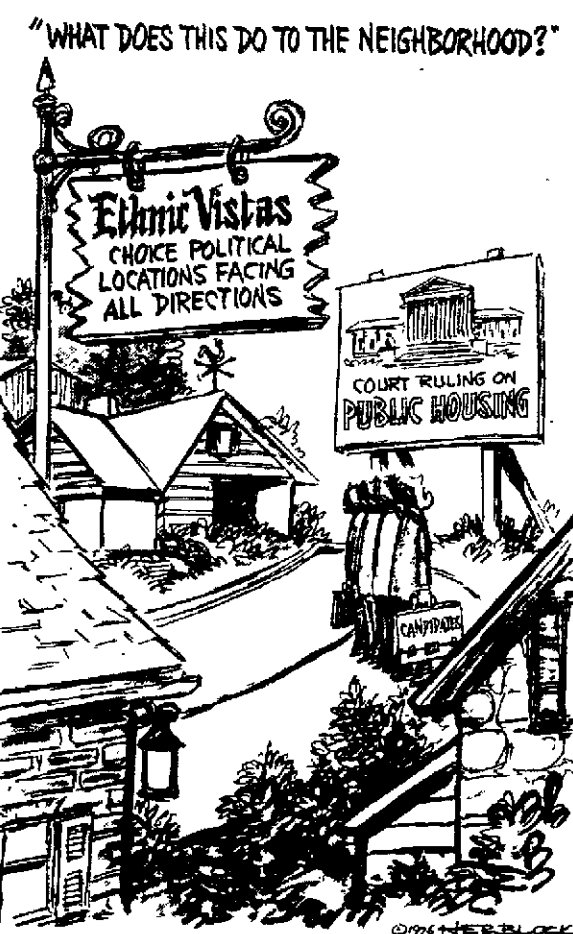

Carter, especially, has taken pains to express his undying opposition to affirmative action on the part of the federal government to alter the ethnic makeup of neighborhoods. Anybody who takes time to look at the dictionary can see that "ethnic" is just "color" spelled funny, and anybody who takes time to read existing federal housing laws will find that the federal government long ago committed itself to affirmative action to integrate neighborhoods when it decreed that it is wrong to relegate public housing solely to ghettos. Some public housing units have to be built in middle and upper income residential areas, the law states, and these units have to be filled without regard to race, creed or color. Period.

Dorothy Gautreaux knew that meant affirmative action to integrate residential neighborhoods, and she wasn't nearly as educated as Jimmy Carter and she never had the gall to run for president. Now that the Supreme Court has agreed with her and clarified the obvious, one would hope that Carter and his co-contenders for the White House would come around.

They haven't, at least not Carter, who announced before the ink had dried on the Supreme Court's ruling that the decision "suits me fine," implying that there was no difference between the justices' position and his own. Well, peanuts. It just isn't so, and Dorothy Gautreaux would have told Carter so. Just like she told Dick Daley.

Copping Out On Anti-Trust Bill

WASHINGTON — President Ford dropped his support of legislation to curb corporate mergers after his most prominent campaign fund-raiser complained about the bill to top White House and Treasury officials.

The decision to scuttle the consumer measure was reached at a secret White House meeting after fund-raiser Bernard Lasker intervened. Lasker, an investment banker and former head of the New York Stock Exchange, has been a key member of Ford's executive campaign finance committee since November.

The amendment which so infuriated Lasker would have given the government a better chance to block major corporate mergers which often strangle competition and run up consumer prices.

But the legislation could also cost the client's of Lasker's internationally known investment firm hundreds of millions of dollars.

So, a few weeks ago Lasker began calling his friends in Washington to object to the anti-trust bill as "inflexible." He spoke with Treasury and White House officials, including the President's top economic aide, William Sedman.

Almost immediately, the matter was brought up at a closed meeting of the White House's powerful economic board. There, the Treasury officials whittled away at the arguments of the Justice Department's anti-trust chief Thomas Kauper. Finally, the Lasker view prevailed.

To avoid making Kauper publicly back down, the White House had his boss, Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler, convey the bad news to Senate Anti-Trust Chairman Philip Hart, D-Mich.

"The administration," wrote Tyler, "does not support enactment of the pre-merger stay provision." The letter all but sounded the death knell for the bill because of the implicit threat of veto.

Sedman, who acted as a fair-minded mediator in the matter, confirmed he had spoken to the powerful fund-raiser about the provision Treasury officials also conceded they spoke with Lasker Lasker did not return our call.

Footnote: President Ford also flip-flopped on a previous anti-trust measure. After pressure from business groups, Ford reversed himself on a bill to allow states to file anti-trust suits on behalf of their consumers.

High-ranking officers of the Navy's flagship carrier Saratoga, on at least one occasion, used the ship's nuclear storage spaces to smuggle whisky and furniture past U.S. customs.

The gold-braid smugglers correctly guessed that the customs inspectors, lacking nuclear clearance, wouldn't try to check the nuclear areas for contraband.

For more than two years, the Saratoga crew, disciplined to protect nuclear secrets, has been even more tight-lipped about the booze that was stashed in the bomb spaces. The secret might never have leaked out if the top brass hadn't revoked the liberty privileges of scores of enlisted men for drunkenness.

The indignant sailors got in touch with us to complain that their alcoholic trespasses were trivial compared to the escapades of certain top officers, including an admiral who turned out to be the secret owner of some confiscated spirits.

We have carefully verified the complaints from eyewitnesses and Navy files. Here are the fascinating facts.

Just before the Saratoga pulled out of the Tonkin Gulf in winter, 1973, some Navy bigwigs loaded crates of whisky into a nuclear storage room on the third deck below the hangar bay. Some rattan furniture from the Philippines was also hidden in the secret nuclear area, according to our sources. The contraband, safe in its nuclear hiding place, was sneaked into the United States, duty-free. The commanding officer of the Saratoga at that time was Capt. James R. Sanderson.

Last year, some Filipino stewards were also caught smuggling a load of booze aboard the Saratoga off the shores of Rota, Spain.

An alert master at arms spotted the stewards in the act of lugging the heavy crates and confiscated the bootleg liquor. He described the incident, in accordance with Navy regulations, in an investigative report.

But the report was quietly discarded after Rear Adm. Forrest Petersen angrily told Saratoga officers the booze belonged to him. In fact, he ordered the Saratoga's executive officer to personally return the liquor to the admiral's spacious cabin.

Petersen, incidentally, likes sports almost as much as booze. For when the Saratoga anchored just off Casablanca during the same tour, he loaded his golf clubs into one of the carrier's helicopters for a game with the Pasha of Mohammeda. Naturally, this didn't go over very well with the enlisted men, who were left behind to swab the decks.

Footnote: Sanderson denied any knowledge of efforts to avoid the payment of legitimate import duties on furniture or liquor. He says he declared about $2,800 worth of goods to customs inspectors. Petersen said the stewards were bringing him only "two or three bottles of cooking sherry." He added that his helicopter trip to the golf course in Casablanca was for an official function.

The militant American Indian Movement put off a strategy meeting in Canada, according to a confidential FBI teletype message, because an Indian medicine man felt the signs were negative. FBI informants who have infiltrated the Indian movement had reported a pow-wow was planned in Ontario during late February. Some four hundred militants, both Indian and white, from the United States, Mexico and Canada, were expected to attend. The FBI infiltrators warned that some of the delegates would be carrying guns.

But unaccountably the meeting was called off. The informants later explained the reason to FBI director Clarence Kelley, who sent a teletype message to other law enforcement agencies reporting "An Indian medicine man caused the change, because, after performing a ritual, he felt the time was not propitious for the meeting."

Water Rates Decision

Lincoln, Neb.

I wrote a letter a couple of weeks ago about the City Council's decision to consult privately with the Chamber of Commerce before it decided on the water rates. I signed myself "Suspicious Citizen" because I figured all the Chamber wanted was to lower commercial rates, and I was pretty sure that would mean we residential water-users would end up paying for it.

Well, it looks as if I was right. The recent water rates were written with the help of the Chamber of Commerce, according to the Council members who voted for them. And, yes, commercial rates did go down. Meanwhile, we residential users now get only 500 cubic feet of water at the old price of 25 cents before the price goes up. Five hundred cubic feet! Do they really think you can wash a family and give them drinking water with 500 cubic feet of water? And I see that industry gets its water for 20 cents or 15 cents, no matter how much it uses!

I said in my last letter that the City Council was a public governmental body — not the legislative branch of the Chamber of Commerce. Evidently I was wrong. Maybe they should take this cozy little relationship one step further and just send all their water issues to the Chamber's utilities committee in the first place. That way, they could save all that time spent "listening" to the citizens who spoke at Council meetings.

I would like to say one more thing about that wolf in sheep's clothing, Max Denney. He kept talking about how concerned he was about all the people who called him to complain about unfair water rates. Then after playing the people's champion for the last several months, he turned right around and voted in rates that make US pay more so that Goodyear and the other big businesses can pay less! I am reminded of an old saying, "With friends like him, who needs enemies?"

Courageous Efforts

Lincoln, Neb.

All of Lincoln should be proud of its fire department, heart rescue team and burn center.

On Wednesday, April 7, at 1:07 p.m., Shift C of the fire station at Fremont and Trouzahn received the alarm to go to 2645 North 61st Street. Three firemen literally crawled into a burning furnace to pull Terry Sparks from the smoke and flames. Along with the heart team they kept him alive to reach the burn center at St. Elizabeth Hospital. The first report that night was that he couldn't make it.

He is making it.

The Old Hidden Tax Trick

In the debate over changes in Lincoln water rates, one argument is deserving of comment no matter what formula finally is adopted by the city.

We have heard over and over again from proponents of a rate schedule which calls for lower rates for non-residential customers that no matter how much you charge business and industry, consumers will wind up paying the bill anyway because such production costs will be passed on.

It is better for the little guy, accordingly for consumers (in this case, homeowners) to subsidize industry up front by bearing more of the water system revenue burden, than to end up bearing it in the long run through passed-on costs which take the form of hidden taxes.

We think that argument is a bunch of bunk.

The argument over setting a water rate schedule should center on what is fair, not over what might or might not be passed on as a cost of doing business in a supposedly competitive economic system.

If non-residential customers are to be given a cheaper water rate it should be because there is proof that it costs less to supply said customers with water, or as recognition of the stimulus such customers give the economy by providing jobs. We're not entirely impressed with those arguments, either, but they make more sense than arguing for a rate break for non-residential customers on the basis that if the homeowner-consumer doesn't pay more now, he'll pay a hidden tax later.

Realistically speaking, can you imagine that industry savings from lower water bills would be "passed on" to the consumer in the form of lower prices? Many people would view that as not as likely as an increase in costs being passed on. But that really should be beside the point.

We don't think a rate structure should be based on what some water customers may do in the area of business practices.

Rates should be based on an equitable formula where one class of customer does not subsidize another.

Let the commercial and industrial customers pass on their legitimate costs of doing business as best they can, letting competition come into play.

Spotlight On Africa

Maybe the United States and Africa and Henry Kissinger and the African leaders he will talk to during this two-week trip will learn more about each other, and maybe in the process a more realistic and less dangerous relationship between Africa and the United States will develop.

That is the hope, at any rate, and a trip such as Kissinger is taking can only help in sharpening or clarifying the perceptions each holds of the other.

Kissinger's statements thus far that the U.S. will not supply military aid to any of the black nationalist movements and that the U.S. prefers to channel its political and economic efforts to influence moves to majority rule through established governments may not set too well with militant nationalists and their sympathizers.

But it is a prudent course for this nation to take.

Aside from Israel, we haven't had much success in choosing sides and arming our choice in regional wars.

But Kissinger's recognition that liberation movements must be consulted and that Washington will continue to use its political and economic influence to bring about majority rule should have a healthy effect on efforts to close the U.S.-black Africa gap, if only President Ford or whoever succeeds him will take more definite steps in pressuring for representative government in southern Africa and if American resolve to back the concept of majority rule in Africa is not lost in a sea of domestic conservative political rhetoric.

The U.S. has stubbed its toe in black Africa but has not yet fallen flat on its face. Kissinger's hopes of creating better relationships with African leaders upon which to build a new American policy toward Africa are widely shared.

Democrats Face Divisive Dilemma

WASHINGTON — A couple of years ago, it didn't seem possible that the Democrats could blow the presidential election of 1976 — and they still may not be able to do it — but they're trying.

They are getting into a mess in the struggle between Carter and Humphrey. Many of the elders of their party, backed by the leaders, organization and money of Big Labor, are ganging up on Carter. They are trying to be clever at a time when the people of the country are sick of clever presidents, and longing for somebody new and moderate.

This is a very dicey strategy, for the independent voters now outnumber even the registered Democrats, and Carter clearly has appeal across party lines. He has demonstrated the one thing any candidate of either party has to have to win the presidency — an ability to win the commitment of many of the uncommitted voters.

We cannot tell from the primary elections so far how wide or deep Carter's support is. Only about a quarter of the eligible voters have gone to the polls in the state contests, but two things we do know:

First, Carter has won most of the head-on confrontations with the other announced candidates, and second, his supporters are either fiercely loyal to him personally or hostile to the Democratic Party candidates and pro-Democratic political and labor leaders who oppose him.

This is the dilemma that is now dividing the Democratic Party. For Carter may not have enough support to regain the White House for the Democrats after eight years, but if they dish him out of the nomination by party and labor manipulation, his supporters may very well vote for Ford rather than Humphrey and keep the Republicans in the White House.

In fairness to the people and organizations trying to stop Carter, many of them obviously believe that Humphrey would be a better president — more experienced than Carter on both domestic and foreign affairs.

If you could get an honest secret vote of all members of Congress and even all the leading members of the Ford administration, including President Ford, about the Democrat best qualified to be president, if the Republicans didn't win, there is little doubt that Humphrey would win their votes by a large majority.

But there are other considerations. An election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future. Half of the people alive in the world today are now under 25 years of age. Both at home and abroad, people are looking to Washington for new beginnings that can deal with the coming world.

This is Carter's strength. He is not a man of the past, or of the right like Ford, or of the left like Humphrey. He is at least something new, and yet, paradoxically, something very old-fashioned in political, ethical, and even religious terms, and this seems to be touching something deep and enduring in the mind of many voters.

The guess here is that Carter's faith and character may be the "sleeper" in this election: It is not only that he is somebody new in a country that is disillusioned with the old, but that he believes in something in the American ideal we have lost.

Hubert Humphrey is going to have to deal with this at some point or ignore Carter and risk the resentment of Carter's supporters. He is not doing either now.

Humphrey says he is standing aside and leaving the outcome of the Democratic presidential nomination to his party, but he is not really standing aside. He is showing up in the critical primary states. He has been appearing at the labor rallies in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. He is deeply involved in the "Stop-Carter" movement, and if he succeeds, he will have to deal with the consequences of Carter's resentful backers.

Humphrey is betting on the power of the political and labor union leaders of the Democratic Party, and on programs of full employment and federal medical assistance.

Carter is appealing, not primarily to economic but to philosophic remedies. He is saying that we cannot solve our personal problems at home or abroad by talking merely about budgets and the Gross National Product, but that we have to find unity and peace closer to the intimate places of the hearts and minds of our own people.

We have never had a debate quite like this since Woodrow Wilson ran for the presidency. Carter, another outsider, doesn't speak as eloquently as Wilson, but he is getting at the same thing — at the moral apathy and spiritual bewilderment of the nation.

With one difference, Carter combines his philosophy with the toughest political organization and most devoted team of volunteers seen in national politics in a long time. He is Mayor Daley of Chicago in the binding of a hymn book, and the Democratic Party establishment is going to have to accept him or come to terms with him — or face the loss of the election. ~

SeTech Board's Authority Issue

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Voters will place at least one and possibly three new faces on the 11-member board governing vocational-technical campuses in Fairbury, Lincoln and Milford.

Six of 11 district seats on the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area Board are open in the primary election May 11.

Three incumbents are running unopposed and will advance automatically to the November general election ballot.

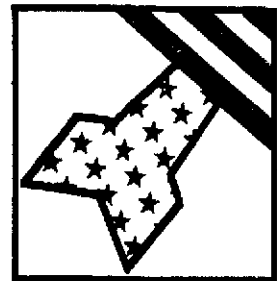

In the other three races, one incumbent declined to seek reelection. Two more board members face challengers in their bids for six-year, unsalaried terms.

It will be only the second board race since the first members were appointed when the community college system was created in 1973.

The board's authority is a campaign issue, since the Legislature this year denied SeTech's attempt to acquire defunct Pershing College for expansion into Beatrice. However, the lawmakers earlier vested financial and operational powers in the area board, removing state control.

Fairbury An Issue

Upcoming local determination issues will be the future of the SeTech Fairbury campus, and building needs in Lincoln.

Incumbents face opposition only in the two Lincoln districts, where Earl E. Kraft of 440 Jeffrey Drive and Don Nielsen of 7631 Englewood Drive are each running for a second term.

Representing District 4, Kraft is a 49-year-old petroleum jobber and a high school graduate. He has led SeTech work in studying Lincoln campus building needs, voted to acquire Pershing and to close the Fairbury campus.

His challenger is Robert E. Frangenberg, 33, of 1905 C. Apt. E. A program coordinator for the Child Guidance Center, he holds bachelors and masters degrees.

In District 5, two candidates will try to oust Nielsen, 43, Notifier Engineering general manager. Nielsen voted pro-Pershing and anti-Fairbury. A past Lincoln General Hospital board member, Nielsen is Nebraska Association of Community Colleges Trustees vice president.

Two Opponents

One opponent is DiAnna R.

Schimek, 36, of 2321 Camelot Court. A substitute teacher and housewife, Mrs. Schimek attended Colorado Women's College, the University of Nebraska State College degree. A former teacher and Democratic party employee, she is active in the League of Women Voters.

Nielsen's second challenger is James N. Preston, 45, of 321 Taylor Park Drive, employed in trade association management. He attended what was formerly Fairbury Junior College and NU.

In District 1, Lloyd V. Wright of Reynolds chose not to seek another term. Wright in 1974 defeated Howard R. Mannschreck, 34, of Fairbury, who was appointed to the original SeTech board and will now try to regain that seat.

Farm Implements

A farm implement dealer and NU graduate, Mannschreck is active in the Fairbury Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees.

Lawrence Beckler of Seward and Deloris Henney of Fairbury will also vie to succeed Wright. Beckler, 54, is a farm equipment business president and high school graduate. Active in the Chamber of Commerce and PTA, he is a former member of the Seward City Council and Milford Board of Education.

Mrs. Henney, 65, will retire this year from her teaching post at the SeTech Fairbury campus, where she was past dean of women and associate dean of students. She holds bachelors and masters degrees from NU, served on the old junior college board and Fairbury Board of Education. Active in the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Henney was a vocal supporter of keeping the Fairbury campus open.

Races Uncontested

In the uncontested races, Betty Schlaphoff of Waverly seeks a second term representing District 2. Mrs. Schlaphoff, 62, is an assistant bank cashier and former teacher. The Nebraska Wesleyan University graduate served on the Waverly school board and city panels, and is active in the Grange and Bicentennial Commission.

In District 3, Marjorie E. Haessler of Wahoo will also move automatically to the general election ballot. An original SeTech board appointee, the 50-year-old housewife attended Midland College and is active in the Democratic Party.

SeTech Vice President G. Alan Dunlap of Milford is the lone candidate in the at-large race. Dunlap, 51, is president and vice president of six area banks, and a real estate partner. He attended NU and Colorado College, earned degrees from Wisconsin University and Harvard School of Business. Dunlap sits on national boards of three universities and schools.

New Meat, Poultry Lab Building Sought

The search for a new meat and poultry lab building in Lincoln by the U.S. General Services Administration will begin within six weeks.

Three labsites were announced in August 1975. The other sites are San Francisco and Athens, Ga.

The diagnostic work for the U.S. Meat and Poultry Inspection Service will be performed by about 50 full-and part-time employees. The Lincoln service will inspect all meat and poultry processed for interstate shipment between the Mississippi River and the Rocky Mountains.

Either a new or remodeled building will be considered for the lab, which requires a one-story building with off-street parking and some land for other facilities.

SeTech Board's Authority Issue

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Voters will place at least one and possibly three new faces on the 11-member board governing vocational-technical campuses in Fairbury, Lincoln and Milford.

Six of 11 district seats on the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area Board are open in the primary election May 11.

Three incumbents are running unopposed and will advance automatically to the November general election ballot.

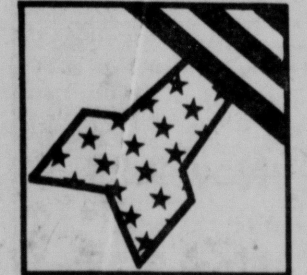

In the other three races, one incumbent declined to seek reelection. Two more board members face challengers in their bids for six-year, unsalaried terms.

It will be only the second board race since the first members were appointed when the community college system was created in 1973.

The board's authority is a campaign issue, since the Legislature this year denied SeTech's attempt to acquire defunct Pershing College for expansion into Beatrice. However, the lawmakers earlier vested financial and operational powers in the area board, removing state control.

Fairbury An Issue

Upcoming local determination issues will be the future of the SeTech Fairbury campus, and building needs in Lincoln.

Incumbents face opposition only in the two Lincoln districts, where Earl E. Kraft of 440 Jeffrey Drive and Don Nielsen of 7631 Englewood Drive are each running for a second term.

Representing District 4, Kraft is a 49-year-old petroleum jobber and a high school graduate. He has led SeTech work in studying Lincoln campus building needs, voted to acquire Pershing and to close the Fairbury campus.

His challenger is Robert E. Frangenberg, 33, of 1905 C. Apt. E. A program coordinator for the Child Guidance Center, he holds bachelors and masters degrees.

In District 5, two candidates will try to oust Nielsen, 43, Notifier Engineering general manager. Nielsen voted pro-Pershing and anti-Fairbury. A past Lincoln General Hospital board member, Nielsen is Nebraska Association of Community Colleges Trustees vice president.

Two Opponents

One opponent is DiAnna R.

Schimek, 36, of 2321 Camelot Court. A substitute teacher and housewife, Mrs. Schimek attended Colorado Women's College, the University of Nebraska and holds a Kearney State College degree. A former teacher and Democratic party employee, she is active in the League of Women Voters.

Nielsen's second challenger is James N. Preston, 45, of 321 Taylor Park Drive, employed in trade association management. He attended what was formerly Fairbury Junior College and NU.

In District 1, Lloyd V. Wright of Reynolds chose not to seek another term. Wright in 1974 defeated Howard R. Mannschreck, 34, of Fairbury, who was appointed to the original SeTech board and will now try to regain that seat.

Farm Implements

A farm implement dealer and NU graduate, Mannschreck is active in the Fairbury Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees.

Lawrence Beckler of Seward and Deloris Henney of Fairbury will also vie to succeed Wright. Beckler, 54, is a farm equipment business president and high school graduate. Active in the Chamber of Commerce and PTA, he is a former member of the Seward City Council and Milford Board of Education.

Mrs. Henney, 65, will retire this year from her a teaching post at the SeTech Fairbury campus, where she was past dean of women and associate dean of students. She holds bachelors and masters degrees from NU, served on the old junior college board and Fairbury Board of Education. Active in the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Henney was a vocal supporter of keeping the Fairbury campus open.

Races Uncontested

In the uncontested races, Betty Schlaphoff of Waverly seeks a second term representing District 2. Mrs. Schlaphoff, 62, is an assistant bank cashier and former teacher. The Nebraska Wesleyan University graduate served on the Waverly school board and city panels, and is active in the Grange and Bicentennial Commission.

In District 3, Marjorie E. Haessler of Wahoo will also move automatically to the general election ballot. An original SeTech board appointee, the 50-year-old housewife attended Midland College and is active in the Democratic Party.

SeTech Vice President G. Alan Dunlap of Milford is the lone candidate in the at-large race. Dunlap, 51, is president and vice president of six area banks, and a real estate partner. He attended NU and Colorado College, earned degrees from Wisconsin University and Harvard School of Business. Dunlap sits on national boards of three universities and schools.

Well-Meant Offer Of Assistance May Be Ill-Timed, Unwanted

By JOANNE FARRIS
A reader writes The other day I was sitting in the park enjoying the sunshine during my lunch hour. An elderly man sat down beside me and opened a brown paper bag, pulled out an orange, and started to peel it. His hands were gnarled and his fingers were stiff so that it was difficult for him to peel the orange.

I was on the verge of offering to peel it for him when I thought. He's not in any hurry, and I noticed that he seemed to be enjoying his self-assigned task. By the time I had to back to my office he had completely peeled the orange and was beginning to eat it section by section with obvious relish. He taught me a good lesson in patience and persistence. COMMENT: You were perceptive to have controlled your impulse to help that man. As you recognized, he was taking good care of himself, and he did not need help. Sometimes vigorous and energetic persons get a kick out of helping a person who is not, but it may be a selfish one.

As we age and lose some of our mobility, it does often take us a long time to do a simple task which once we could have accomplished quickly with ease. However aging and aged persons cherish their ability to carry out their self appointed tasks even though they may be slower and even a little clumsy about them. The orange peeling is a good example. The man was enjoying his chore he was happy eating the fruit he had peeled for himself, he had the pride of accomplishing a task which contributed to his well-being in several ways. Middle-aged children often commit the error of doing for their elderly parents what the older persons can do for themselves. Although the help is well meant the result over time often invites the parent to feel incompetent and/or dependent. When you see older persons performing tasks or doing jobs of work, leave them alone to do whatever it is at their own pace and in their own style. A wise person of any age knows when he or she needs assistance and asks for it. I believe our senior citizens are far wiser in this regard than we give them credit for being. If they really need help or want it, trust them to ask for it. We all need to feel that we can do things for ourselves. It does not matter how well we do them, or how fast, as long as we satisfy ourselves by our performance. Even when a person is not wholly satisfied by the way he has done something, he derives some satisfaction from having done it for himself. Can you remember a time when you watched a youngster or teenager struggling to put together some sort of complicated apparatus? You watched for a few minutes, frustrated at his or her awkwardness and seeming inability to do whatever it was. Finally you were driven to go over and offer to help, only to be told rudely, "Leave me alone. This is mine, and I know what I'm doing." I think many old persons would occasionally like to be rude that way and refuse our ill-timed offers of unwanted assistance. Save your rescues for those who ask to be saved.

Westview Backers Fight Closing

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

An old and recurring issue — the closing of Westview Home — was met with familiar arguments as family, friends and volunteers praised the home-like atmosphere, the country living, the loving care given at the county-run home.

The County Board hearing room was crowded with Westview supporters for more than two hours Monday evening, and emotions were almost as high as the temperature.

County commissioners have battled the Westview question since at least 1971, when an attic fire temporarily closed the 50-year-old building.

And the question facing commissioners this round is one of money. It will take between $300,000 and $450,000 to remodel the structure so it can meet state fire, health, sanitation and licensing requirements.

A committee of 11, who studied the home, located about seven miles north of Lincoln, concluded that the county could more wisely spend its money by closing the home and transferring the residents to other nursing homes or private group homes within the county.

But relatives of residents at Westview disagreed.

Several relatives of chronic alcoholics who have lived for many years at the Westview home said there are no good alternatives.

"It's quite a way from the liquor store. We can limit the trips to just a couple times a year," said Harold Procter.

And James Procter, also a relative of a long-time Westview resident, asked the commissioners to hold off on the suggested June 30 closing so alternative care for the chronic alcoholic could be found.

A facility like Westview is needed, said Bill Wood, whose wife has visited Westview with her church group.

The question facing the county is whether it can afford Westview. But the question should be, "Can we afford not to?" said Wood.

Several women took issue with the committee report statement that Westview residents who have been placed in private group homes recently have adjusted.

One woman moved her mother back to Westview when she found that her mother was being given too much medication and too little supervision in a small group home situation.

Another woman related a conversation she had with a man who had been moved from Westview to a group home in Lincoln. The man had obviously not washed his clothes for some time and was either drugged or drinking, she said.

The man said he liked the independent living and when she asked him what he was doing he answered, "Not a damn thing. I don't have to feed those damn chickens anymore."

Only the study committee members and one private citizen, Bob Vanvalkenburg, supported closing the facility.

Vanvalkenburg questioned the more than $178,000 annual operating cost of the home, and asked the commissioners to request an audit on exactly how those monies were being spent.

The commissioners are expected to make a decision on the Westview question during their Tuesday afternoon meeting.

Council May Alter Street Action Plan

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council decided Monday night to have a committee study revisions in the Street Action Plan before scrapping Lincoln's plan in favor of the state's.

The council gave a six-member committee three months to streamline the plan, which sets out procedures for planning and improving streets in Lincoln.

At the urging of Mayor Helen Boosalis, the council also asked the Citizens Action Group to continue study revisions in the plan. The CAG is the committee charged with overseeing the plan.

A subcommittee of the CAG began revamping the plan several months ago, but the entire committee decided to wait on further changes until the council decided whether to kill the plan or not.

originally proposed the state plan be substituted for the city's, but said he would be happy if the city's plan were streamlined.

Sikyta asserted that five intersection improvement projects are being held up because of the extensive procedures required in Lincoln's plan. The city plan is more restrictive than the state.

Sikyta read a letter from Ray Hogrefe of the Federal Highway Administration written to State Engineer Thomas Doyle. Hogrefe said the city's plan "apparently contains regulations which are too rigid for those minor type projects, but once established we have no option except to insist the highway agency follow their self-imposed rules."

Hogrefe said modification of the plan could be in order.

Sikyta interpreted the letter to mean that the intersection projects wouldn't receive federal funding until the requirements of the Action Plan are met.

A number of people who have been active in neighborhood organizations opposed Sikyta's proposal on the grounds that citizen participation would be eliminated at an early stage in the street planning process.

Dick Wood, representing the Better Lincoln Association, supported streamlining procedures to eliminate "some time-consuming and expensive steps." The Better Lincoln Committee is a non-profit organization which is interesting in transportation planning, Wood said.

In other business the City Council appropriated $37,750 to the Pre-Trial Diversion program and approved a $11,957 expenditure to the Youth Service System for summer camp programs.

The council appointed Pat Cole to the Charter Revision Committee to fill the unexpired

Possible Violation By Council Eyed

A candidate for the Legislature has asked the Lancaster County attorney to look into the possibility that City Council members violated the state's open meeting law.

William E. Pat Daugherty, candidate for the legislature from the 29th District, asked County Atty. Ron Lahners to investigate a recent meeting of four councilmen where an alternate water rate plan was devised.

The four councilmen—Dick Baker, Bob Sikyta, Max Denney, and Bob Cook — met privately April 15, to discuss the water rate proposals.

From that meeting came a new plan, Z, which was passed by a 4 to 3 vote at the following Monday afternoon council meeting. All four councilmen attending the Friday discussion voted for the plan.

"... I have become concerned about the circumstances which suggest to me that a meeting of the City Council was held on April 16..." said Daugherty's letter to Lahners.

"The event was not open to the public, yet it included four members of the council which constitute a quorum..." he wrote.

The county attorney's office will look into the circumstances of the Friday gathering, said Lahners.

Decision By Store Likely In 9 Months

A decision on whether J. C. Penney's store remains downtown probably will be made within the next nine months, city officials were told Monday night.

Art Trehearn, manager of Lincoln's store, said the company is considering building a store in a shopping center because the cost of expanding the store downtown is too high. J. C. Penney's is located at 13th and O St.

Trehearn voiced concern that the Lincoln Center redevelopment plan excluded the construction of skywalks between Penney's and other buildings.

Trehearn said Penney's would stay downtown if the firm could get some kind of commitment from city officials to either build a second parking garage which could be connected to the store or to help the firm out some other way.

Any County, City Merger 5, 6 Years Off

Any merger of county and city governments is a long five or six years down the road, according to discussions by a task force charged with laying local consolidation ground work.

First will come a brief constitutional amendment allowing consolidation, which hopefully will be passed by the Unicameral next year then by the state voters in 1978, said members of the governance and taxation task force of the City-County

Implementation Committee Monday.

Then the Legislature will be asked to pass enabling legislation allowing Lincoln and Lancaster County to merge the two governments into one.

If that fails, supporters of merger can try to get the same legislation through an initiative action by the people.

After enabling legislation will come the drafting of a constitution for the combined government. And finally, the drafted constitution will be put before the county voters for a referendum vote.

The specifics of any combined government will not be worked out in any detail this year. But the basic idea, according to the Monday discussion, is to do away with the City Council and County Board and create a new legislative body for the entire county.

Defense Recalls Prosecution Witnesses

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

A stream of prosecution witnesses were recalled to the stand by defense attorneys Monday as the trial of Wesley Peery ended its twelfth day.

Peery is charged with first degree murder and robbery in the death of Mrs. Marianne Mitzner and the disappearance of $22,500 worth of coins, watches and cigarette lighters from the Mitzner Rare Coin Shop, 6106 Havelock.

One of the eight earlier witnesses recalled to the stand was Karen Schmidt, a forensic serologist with the State Crime Lab.

Mrs. Schmidt was questioned on tests she ran on four hairs intertwined in the strands of a hair net found in the coin shop.

Mrs. Schmidt said she compared the hairs with hairs from Peery, his girlfriend Mary Blazek and Mrs. Mitzner and decided they were dissimilar.

The expert in the study of body fluids also testified that she did not conduct blood typing tests on the blood of Peery and Mrs. Mitzner other than the familiar A, B, O grouping.

Under questioning from defense attorney Stanley Cohen, Mrs. Schmidt admitted she could also have used blood typing tests in which blood is grouped under M, N and MN categories, or blood typing tests in the Rh system or for sub-groupings under the A, B, O system.

She admitted the tests would help narrow the percentage of people to whom a blood sample could have been taken.

As a prosecution witness, she had testified that a blood-soaked men's handkerchief found in the coin shop carried blood type B, that of Mrs. Mitzner, and sweat from a person with blood type A, that of Peery.

One of the witnesses making a first appearance in the courtroom was Shirley Herbel, a Motel.

Her testimony tended to bolster other statements made by Peery that he accumulated quarters in his daily affairs, checking to see if any were valuable silver coins.

Miss Herbel testified that Peery appeared at the motel every Saturday night in March, April and May between midnight and 3 a.m.

Most of the time, she said, he would give her three or four dollar bills in return for coins. Occasionally, however, he would give her coins for bills, she said.

139 Coins Found

Defense attorneys apparently intended her testimony to counter the effect of 139 coins found in Peery's toolbox by police and presented as evidence in the case.

Another new witness was Doug Perry, a jeweler operating out of his home. Perry testified he had handled six gold watches of a little-known brand that are also missing from the Mitzner Coin Shop.

A tag for a watch of that brand was found in Peery's car. Perry testified that he cannot remember to whom he sold four of the watches.

like the sound score used in this production, was too busy to be functional and complementary to the language. Costumes by Sue Seager and Sandy Moeller were excellent, from Blanche's costumes to Mitch's perfect brown sports coat.

It is Director William Morgan's particular gift to bring focus and energy to his ambitious productions.

If the moments when Blanche intimates her feelings about Stanley to Stella could be less afflicted with reactions by Stanley, the final violence of his actions would seem more logical.

It is Williams' great gift to create dramatic sonatas, tapestries of emotion, he is our finest playwright of mood and the dark laughter of human conflict. Howell's production runs the remainder of this week.

Redinger's Blanche 'Alive' In 'Streetcar'

By BILL WALLIS

Tennessee Williams' American masterpiece "A Streetcar Named Desire" is receiving a strong, representative production at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Howell Theatre.

Like all Williams' plays, it is a study of suppression, and the destruction of the fragile by the strong.

The character of Blanche Dubois indicates Williams' central theme: mankind afflicted with a universal sense of loss, resulting from violation of trust. Williams' chosen environment for his theme is the Southern United States, which produces tattered butterflies like Blanche, whose intense sense of loss has been replaced by a destructive, self-conscious lasciviousness.

Against Dan Proett's lovely — but needlessly heavy and moody — setting, Paula Redinger's Blanche comes to life. She is an intelligent actress who captures the flesh but misses some of the emotional lace, they say, grace, which makes Blanche one of the glorious female roles in world theatre.

Ms Redinger is excellent, but incomplete at some delicate moments. Her Act I reproaches of Stella, for example, don't ring true.

The character of Stanley offers different challenges for the young actor. Although he is not the Stanley we've been conditioned to expect (Marlon Brando portrayed Stanley in the original Broadway and film versions), George Hanson gives a controlled, striking performance, which climaxes accurately when he molests the taunting but demented Blanche.

Susan Kozak's portrayal of Stella, Stanley's wife, is warm and believable. Her counterpart of docility and calm acceptance of the ways of the world to Blanche's hypersensitivity needs to be worked out better at times to save the less-than-perfectly-written role from simple-mindedness.

Of the neighbors, Sully Wurtz and Paul Baker deserve mention for their comic relief, although the crudeness of language used in ad lib at times is not justified in the original script. Erick Sorenson's Mitch is sympathetic, primarily because of the boyish qualities he brings to the role.

If Dan Proett's set detracts from the poetry of the play, Jerry Lewis lighting matches and complements the poetic mood inherent in the locale and portrayals. Williams' language shares some descriptive qualities with Shakespeare, the setting,

State Farmers Can Skip Tests

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Washington — Nebraska farmers won't have to take a test before they can use pesticides on the Environmental Protection Agency's restricted pesticide list, according to John Quarles, deputy administrator for EPA.

Quarles Monday told the National Association of Farm Editors meeting here that his agency wants to keep the requirements for the pesticide program "as simple as possible so we have a meaningful program."

Quarles said there are 28 states that now are close to satisfying EPA requirements for a state pesticide program.

"It will be more of an educational program than a regulatory program," he said.

"It would make a lot of sense to take the requirement that farmers be certified out of the program, but Congress didn't choose to go that route," Quarles said.

Quarles warned that homeowners as well as farmers will be required to take an informational course on safe pesticide use before being certified as lawful users of restricted pesticides.

The agency hasn't published a list of restricted pesticides yet, but Quarles expressed the hope that a basic list would be announced within one year.

"Unless a homeowner or a farmer has a certificate that he has completed a course on safe use of restricted pesticides, he will not be able to purchase any pesticide on the restricted list," he said.

Quarles attributed the delay in the publishing of the list to a congressional requirement that EPA must re-register nearly 30, 000 ingredients used in the manufacture of pesticides.

Quarles indicated he felt EPA was getting a lot of "unjust criticism" because of delays in the processing of environmental impact statements required prior to the construction of water conservation and flood control projects.

"The efficient wildlife service of the Department of the Interior has held up the processing of these impact statements in many cases. It is not usually our agency that delays the impact statement," he said.

"There is no EPA requirement that there be an impact statement. That requirement comes from the council on the environment which is a White House agency," he explained.

"We would like to see some sort of control, possibly through an educational program, to discourage excess use of fertilizers. Excess fertilizer sometimes gets into our streams because of water runoff from fields," he said.

Quarles denied that EPA is out to get farm chemicals. "Farm chemicals and fertilizers are essential to maintain the agricultural production which we must have to export in order to protect our balance of payments program," he said.

Quarles described the EPA program as "government concern over health problems related to the use of chemicals."

Quarles attributed misunderstanding between farmers and EPA to bureaucrats "getting bogged down in bureaucratic terminology."

"There are a number of areas where EPA's relation with agriculture need to be smoothed out," he concluded.

Rain Leaves Topsoil In Adequate Condition

Rainfall received throughout Nebraska during the past week improved the winter wheat crop's topsoil and subsoil moisture supplies, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics disclosed Monday in its weekly crop-weather report.

Topsoil moisture is now adequate in 85% of the counties, short in only 10% and surplus in 5%, the division said. Subsoil moisture improved to 28% adequate, 71% short and 1% surplus.

A year ago, topsoil was 20% short and subsoil 91% short, the report said.

Winter wheat was reported as 64% fair, 22% good and 14% poor, the division stated.

"Reports indicate that the wheat surviving the dry fall and winter months and winterkill is growing well and looking good in several areas due to the recent moisture," the division said.

Corn planting has begun in most areas of the state, but has been somewhat limited due to

Ag Engineering Honor Awards, UNL Chapter Officers Named

American Society of Agriculture Engineering student honor awards and the 1976-77 officers of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student chapter have been announced.

Selected for the ASAE awards were Chuck Clanton of North Platte and Bob Beccard of Lincoln. The awards are presented on the basis of campus-wide student involvement and grade point averages.

The UNL chapter's new officers are Art Beccard, president, Nebraska City; Trent Wiles, vice president, Lincoln; Gary Dostal, secretary, David City; and Bov Vinton, treasurer, Mullen.

Petersons Invited to Washington

Wayne (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Val Peterson have been invited to Washington, D.C., for a luncheon with President Ford May 12 in honor of the queen of Denmark, Margrethe II and her husband, Prince Henrik. The two will be visiting the U.S. for two weeks and are to be in Blair at Dana College May 20. Peterson, former governor of Nebraska and ambassador to Finland, was a U.S. ambassador to Denmark from 1957 to 1961. The Petersons knew the queen when she was a university student.

Drop In Farm Milk Price Predicted

Farm milk prices may drop because of expected increased milk production and a possible decrease in dairy purchases, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension economist. However, Al Evans said prices still would be higher than one year ago. Nebraska dairymen received $1.60 per hundredweight last February, compared with $7.35 one year earlier, or a 30% increase, he said.

Merrick Added To Disaster Area

Washington (AP) — The office of Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Nebr., said Monday Merrick County had been added by the federal Disaster Assistance Administration to the area affected by a disaster area declaration. In all, farmers in 17 counties now have been listed as eligible for assistance provided under the declaration, issued after ice and wind storms darkened a large area of south central Nebraska late last month.

Senators Will Check Park Needs

Omaha (AP) — State senators and other officials will look at Nebraska park needs during a trip May 17-22. The legislature's Constitutional Recreation and Revision Committee will visit 18 park, recreation, wetlands, historic and special use areas. State Sen. George Syas of Omaha, committee chairman, said the senators hope to resolve a controversy between the state Game Commission and the State Historical Society officials over management of historic sites and facilities on commission-operated property.

Vietnamese Doctor Fund Grows

Wood River (UPI) — A total of $3,600 was collected in the doctors' fund community action. The money will go to the Wood River Medical Improvement Association, which is trying to raise $10,000 to support a medical student and a Vietnamese doctor for this south central Nebraska community. Area residents have contributed more than $27,000 during the past three years to support the program. Wood River has been without a doctor for 18 years.

Colson Perceives No Watergate Changes

Omaha (AP) — Convicted Watergate figure Charles Colson says Washington hasn't changed since the Watergate scandal, and that it won't until politicians get the message of a spiritual awakening elsewhere in the country.

Colson, a White House counsel during the administration of President Richard Nixon, said, "What we learned from Watergate is that if we put our trust in men, we are going to be betrayed."

Colson, who experienced a religious rebirth after leaving the White House, said he cannot think of one life he changed for the better in his 11 years of work in government.

In Omaha as the featured speaker for a prayer breakfast, Colson disputed some reports in the book "The Final Days."

In particular, Colson disputed the report that Nixon became a heavy drinker during his last days in the White House.

"I never saw the man (Nixon) drink to excess," said Colson. "I saw him under intense pressure, but I never saw the slightest sign of him drinking too much."

Colson said he found the latest book by reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein to be "based on fourth and fifth-hand information."

Colson resigned as Nixon's counsel and later served a seven-month prison term for obstruction of justice.

Since his release from jail, Colson said he has continued to correspond with the former president.

Nixon "doesn't understand to this day why the roof caved in" for the telling of one lie, said Colson.

Of his prison term, most of which was served in Alabama, Colson says it was a "little chilling."

Colson said he will meet Tuesday in Lincoln with officials at the Nebraska Penal Complex to discuss the situation there.

Driver Starts Young; Smacks Parked Car

Alliance (AP) — A little Alliance girl, Michelle Hood, won't be 2 years old until next month but already she has had her first traffic accident.

Police said Michelle and a younger child were left in a running car Monday while their mother, Mrs. Michael Hood of Alliance, went into a supermarket.

Michelle put the automatic transmission in reverse and the car banged into a parked auto owned by Victor Covalt of Alliance. Both cars sustained minor damage. There were no injuries.

A police officer listed driver inexperience as "a major contributing factor" to the accident, and issued a verbal warning to the mother.

State Farmers Can Skip Tests

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Washington — Nebraska farmers won't have to take a test before they can use pesticides on the Environmental Protection Agency's restricted pesticide list, according to John Quarles, deputy administrator for EPA.

Quarles Monday told the National Association of Farm Editors meeting here that his agency wants to keep the requirements for the pesticide program "as simple as possible so we have a meaningful program."

Quarles said there are 28 states that now are close to satisfying EPA requirements for a state pesticide program.

"It will be more of an educational program than a regulatory program," he said.

"It would make a lot of sense to take the requirement that farmers be certified out of the program, but Congress didn't choose to go that route," Quarles said.

Quarles warned that homeowners as well as farmers will be required to take an informational course on safe pesticide use before being certified as lawful users of restricted pesticides.

The agency hasn't published a list of restricted pesticides yet, but Quarles expressed the hope that a basic list would be announced within one year.

"Unless a homeowner or a farmer has a certificate that he has completed a course on safe use of restricted pesticides, he will not be able to purchase any pesticide on the restricted list," he said.

Quarles attributed the delay in the publishing of the list to a congressional requirement that EPA must re-register nearly 30, 000 ingredients used in the manufacture of pesticides.

Quarles indicated he felt EPA was getting a lot of "unjust criticism" because of delays in the processing of environmental impact statements required prior to the construction of water conservation and flood control projects.

"The efficient wildlife service of the Department of the Interior has held up the processing of these impact statements in many cases. It is not usually our agency that delays the impact statement," he said.

"There is no EPA requirement that there be an impact statement. That requirement comes from the council on the environment which is a White House agency," he explained.

"We would like to see some sort of control, possibly through an educational program, to discourage excess use of fertilizers. Excess fertilizer sometimes gets into our streams because of water runoff from fields," he said.

Quarles denied that EPA is out to get farm chemicals. "Farm chemicals and fertilizers are essential to maintain the agricultural production which we must have to export in order to protect our balance of payments program," he said.

Quarles described the EPA program as "government concern over health problems related to the use of chemicals."

Quarles attributed misunderstanding between farmers and EPA to bureaucrats "getting bogged down in bureaucratic terminology."

"There are a number of areas where EPA's relation with agriculture need to be smoothed out," he concluded.

Rain Leaves Topsoil In Adequate Condition

Rainfall received throughout Nebraska during the past week improved the winter wheat crop plus the topsoil and subsoil moisture supplies, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics disclosed Monday in its weekly crop-weather report.

Topsoil moisture is now adequate in 85% of the counties, short in only 10% and surplus in 5%, the division said. Subsoil moisture improved to 28% adequate, 71% short and 1% surplus.

"Reports indicate that the wheat surviving the dry fall and winter months and winterkill is growing well and looking good in several areas due to the recent moisture," the division said.

Corn planting has begun in most areas of the state, but has been somewhat limited due to the rains holding down planting to 5%, the report said.

Other comments: Sugar beet planting continues to make rapid progress, but some growers were slowed by rains.

Seeding of small grains continues with both oats and barley about 95% planted.

Pasture and range feed supplies improved this last week, but are short in 63% of the counties reporting.

Palmyra Man Accused Of Murdering His Wife

Nebraska City (AP) — A rural Palmyra man was charged Monday in the death of his wife. Appearing in Otoe County Court, Duane H. Wilken, 31, was charged with second degree murder in the death of his 30-year-old wife Sharron.

According to investigators, Mrs. Wilken was killed April 10. The killing allegedly took place at Sherry's Cafe in Unadilla, which was managed by the couple.

Duane Wilken

records, according to Otoe County Atty. William Davis. Acquaintances of the Wilkens said the cafe was unexpectedly closed at noon April 10 after the Wilken had an argument. Officers said Wilken gave no resistance when he was arrested Saturday night. Wilken was found in a barn on his farm, and a spokesman for the State Patrol said he had "just been walking in the area" for several days before his arrest.

Wilken, suffering from exposure at the time of his arrest, was initially taken to a Nebraska City hospital. He was later transferred to the Otoe County Jail, where he remained Monday in lieu of bond, which Judge Eugene Atkinson set at $100,000.

Further arraignment proceedings in the case were continued until May 3.

Chappell Jailer Is Hostage During Ohio Trio's Escape

Chappell (AP) — Two men and woman being held on assault charges overpowered a jailer Sunday night, then took the jailer as a hostage and escaped from the Deuel County Jail.

The three escapees were identified as Brent K. Kegel, 19, of Portsmouth, Ohio; Darrell E. Ross, 24, of Akron, Ohio, and Carol J. Stafford, 20, Deuel County Sheriff Floyd Stahr said the Stafford woman gave San Jose, Calif., as her last residence, but added that she is apparently a native of Akron and apparently still has a mother living there.

All three were being held for trial on charges of assault with intent to commit robbery in connection with an April 3 incident in which a hitchhiker was robbed of about $7 and was left naked on Interstate 80 about five miles west of here.

The hitchhiker, Thomas Waddell, 27, Greendale, Wis., told authorities that the trio picked him up near Cheyenne, Wyo., and that he was struck in the face and kicked in the back before being left behind.

The three suspects were picked up early the next day near Seward and were returned.

Jailer Elno Strong, 62, said the Stafford woman overpowered him as he was giving her a cigarette through her cell gate.

According to Stahr, the woman grabbed Strong's arm and twisted it until he unlocked her cell. The woman then locked

Strong in her cell and released the other two, the sheriff said.

Before leaving the jail, the escapees stole a handgun, then returned to get Strong. Taking the jailer with them, the escapees took Strong's car and headed west.

Strong said that near Brownson, a tiny Cheyenne County community, the three ran his car off the road.

Following the wreck, Strong said he feigned a broken foot and told the escapees that he couldn't walk. The jailer said the trio left him and began heading west on foot. He said the three told him they were going to California.

Stahr described the escapees, who remained at large late Monday, as "armed and dangerous."

Victor Charged With Murder

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha foundry worker was charged with first degree murder Monday in the weekend stabbing death of a young telephone company employee.

Deputy County Atty. Greg Schatz said Clarence Victor, 43, was ordered held without bond in the Saturday night death of Jerry Black, 24, a Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. records clerk.

Miss Black's body was found in the kitchen of her North-Central Omaha home by police investigators. Authorities said a four-inch-deep gash was on her throat and her clothing, although intact, was partially torn.

Victor, who lived next door to Miss Black, was arrested without resistance shortly after her body was found.

Schatz said a woman living with Victor, Iona Chase, 36, was charged with being an accessory after the fact after she allegedly attempted to help Victor conceal the crime. The Chase woman was ordered held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Acting Douglas County Coroner James P. Keenan said the autopsy showed the knife wound as the definite cause of death. Keenan said he had "no evidence at this time of any sexual assault but additional laboratory tests are being conducted."

Keenan said the results of the additional tests on the sexual assault question "wouldn't be available for several days."

Schatz said Victor and Miss

Black "apparently to some extent knew each other prior to the date in question."

Police were summoned to the home by a girlfriend of Miss Black's, who was talking to her on the telephone when Miss Black started to scream. The girlfriend called police, advising a man was in Miss Black's residence threatening her.

The alleged weapon, a pocket knife, was found by investigators in the yard just west of Miss Black's home.

Authorities said several children living in the Victor home had been placed in foster facilities.

Miss Black was the daughter of Roy and Ruth Black of Neligh.

Shrine Circus Opens In Lincoln On Tuesday

The Shrine Circus doesn't open in Lincoln until Tuesday, and performers are using the time to polish their acts.

Carlos Obando and Pepe Cuenca, both of Ecuador, spent Monday afternoon rehearsing at the State Fairgrounds. They are one of the featured attractions of the 31st annual Shrine Circus, to run Tuesday through Sunday at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Evening performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Matinees will begin at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday; at 4 p.m. Friday, and at 1 and 3:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

'Streetcar' Makes 5

Sarasota, Fla. (UPI) — With the addition of Tennessee Williams' "Streetcar Named Desire" on April 9, the Asolo State Theater is doing five plays in repertory through June 20. The other productions are Langdon Mitchell's "The New York Idea," William Alfred's "Hogan's Goat," Nick Hall's "Going Ape" and "Boy Meets Girl," the Hollywood lampoon by Bella and Samuel Spewack.

State Asks For Closing Of Bonn Modeling School

Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas has filed a lawsuit in Lancaster County District Court asking that the Bette Bonn School of Modeling and Charm be enjoined from continuing model training or any other business in Nebraska.

The suit against the Omaha-based modeling school also names partners Bette Bonn Ledwith of Omaha and Evelyn Parker of Lincoln as defendants.

The action says Bette Bonn newspaper advertisements led prospective students to believe they would immediately get modeling jobs if they enrolled, that the company would help obtain modeling jobs for its graduates, that persons who want to model in Lincoln and Omaha need a "model's card" that could be obtained by enrolling and that students would receive a specific number of hours of instruction.

In fact, the suit alleges, few students were placed in paying jobs while enrolled or after graduation. In addition, the suit says there is no "model's card" requirement in Lincoln or Omaha and many students received less than the full course of the classes.

Consequently, the suit says, many Nebraska residents have incurred damages.

The suit asks that the Bette Bonn firm be permanently enjoined from advertising in the help wanted section of newspapers in such a manner as to have students believe they can get jobs by enrolling. It also asks an injunction against falsely representing the "model's cards."

Pending a hearing on a permanent injunction, the suit asks similar temporary prohibitions against the firm.

Last week, before Douglas brought suit, Mrs. Ledwith and Miss Parker filed libel suits totaling $550,000 against Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerry Fennell.

Those suits contend that Fennell, head of the state's Consumer Protection Division, sent a draft petition of the state's suit to Mrs. Ledwith's husband, Charles, an attorney. According to the libel suits, the draft petition said the Bette Bonn firm "engaged . . . in false representation and conduct . . . numerous Nebraska residents have incurred actual damages as the result of deceptive trade practices."

The draft was mailed before the state's suit was filed.

The libel suits contend that "the publication to the husband . . . of the statements . . . which were false and defamatory . . . were in no way privileged and constituted the malicious publication of a libel . . ."

Government Asks Reopening Of Beatrice State Home Case

Omaha (UPI) — The federal government, contending defendants, including Gov. J. J. Exon, have failed to live up to their part of an agreement, Monday asked U.S. District Judge Albert G. Schatz to reopen the Beatrice State Home case.

In a brief filed in U.S. District Court, the Justice Department said the Nebraska Legislature had failed to appropriate funds for a mental retardation panel to oversee the implementation of a plan ironed out before Schatz last year.

Service Level

The Justice Dept. also cited the failure of Exon and others to prevent the level of services from being reduced in Nebraska's community-based mental retardation programs and the failure of the state to prevent further capital construction at the Beatrice State Home until the residential population could be determined according to the agreement.

The government further asked that the State of Nebraska, State Treasurer Frank March, Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson and State Welfare Director Alan H. Ihms, join the present list of defendants.

The agreement reached last August culminated a 1972 suit filed against Exon in behalf of five children at the home. The Justice Dept. entered the case, which became a class action. The suit claimed Beatrice State Home residents were deprived of their constitutional rights because they allegedly did not receive adequate treatment.

The settlement was to have reduced the more than 1,000 population at the home by about 75% and transferred more home residents to community-based mental retardation centers.

The mental retardation panel was established to monitor the agreement.

The United States, the brief said, continues to remain "gravely concerned" that panel members reported to Schatz last month "that conditions continue to exist at the Beatrice State Home which threaten and place in jeopardy the very lives of certain residents of the institution."

"Immediate steps are required to remedy all such situations," the government said.

Palmyra Man Accused Of Murdering His Wife

Nebraska City (AP) — A rural Palmyra man was charged Monday in the death of his wife.

Appearing in Otoe County Court, Duane H. Wilken, 31, was charged with second degree murder in the death of his 30-year-old wife Sharron.

According to investigators, Mrs. Wilken was killed April 10. The killing allegedly took place at Sherry's Cafe in Unadilla, which was managed by the couple.

Duane Wilken

Mrs. Wilken's body was found last Friday in a shallow garden grave near the couple's home. The decomposed body, which apparently had been burned, was identified through dental records, according to Otoe County Atty. William Davis.

Acquaintances of the Wilkens said the cafe was unexpectedly closed at noon April 10 after the Wilken had an argument.

Officers said Wilken gave no resistance when he was arrested Saturday night. Wilken was found in a barn on his farm, and a spokesman for the State Patrol said he had "just been walking in the area" for several days before his arrest.

Wilken, suffering from exposure at the time of his arrest, was initially taken to a Nebraska City hospital. He was later transferred to the Otoe County Jail, where he remained Monday in lieu of bond, which Judge Eugene Atkinson set at $100,000.

Further arraignment proceedings in the case were continued until May 3.

Chappell Jailer Is Hostage During Ohio Trio's Escape

Chappell (AP) — Two men and woman being held on assault charges overpowered a jailer Sunday night, then took the jailer as a hostage and escaped from the Duell County Jail.

The three escapees were identified as Brent K. Kegley, 19, of Portsmouth, Ohio; Darrell E. Ross, 24, of Akron, Ohio, and Carol J. Stafford, 20. Duell County Sheriff Floyd Stahr said the Stafford woman gave San Jose, Calif., as her last residence, but added that she is apparently a native of Akron and apparently still has a mother living there.

All three were being held for trial on charges of assault with intent to commit robbery in connection with an April 3 incident in which a hitchhiker was robbed of about $7 and was left naked on Interstate 80 about five miles west of here.

The hitchhiker, Thomas Waddell, 27, Greendale, Wis., told authorities that the trio picked him up near Cheyenne, Wyo., and that he was struck in the face and kicked in the back before being left behind.

The three suspects were picked up early the next day near Seward and were returned.

Jailer Elno Strong, 62, said the Stafford woman overpowered him as he was giving her a cigarette through her cell gate.

According to Stahr, the woman grabbed Strong's arm and twisted it until he unlocked her cell. The woman then locked

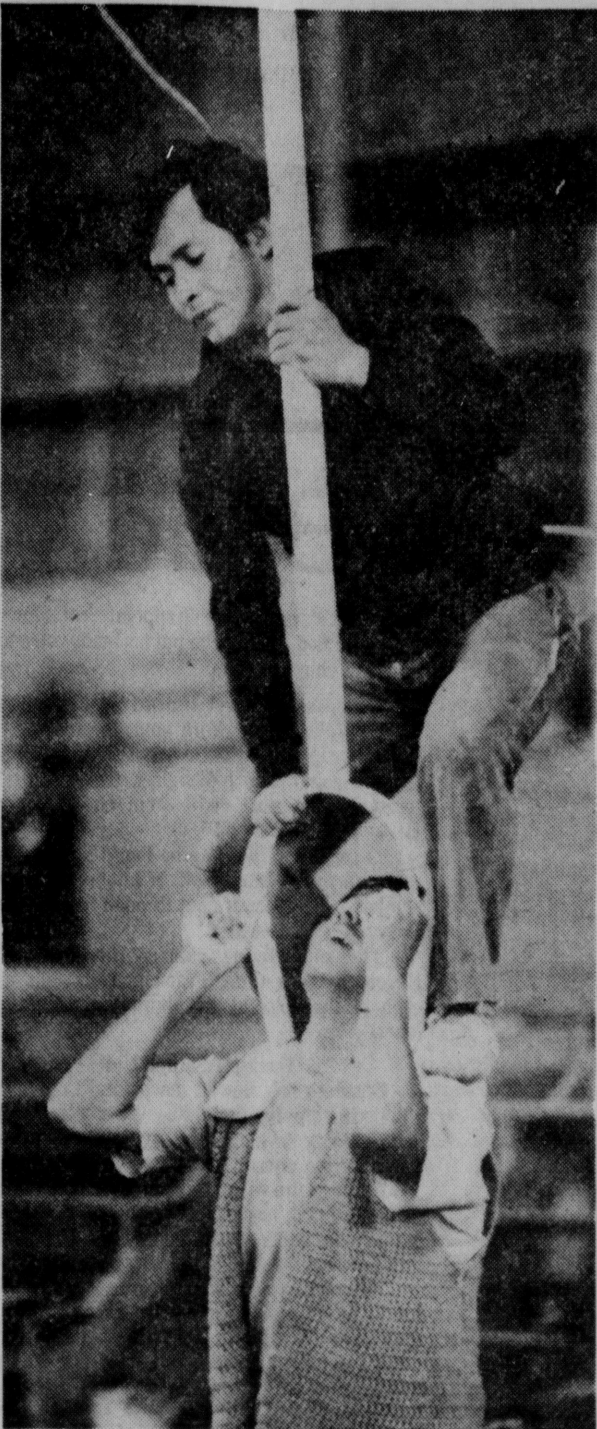

Strong in her cell and released the other two, the sheriff said.

Before leaving the jail, the escapees stole a handgun, then returned to get Strong. Taking the jailer with them, the escapees took Strong's car and headed west.

Strong said that near Brownson, a tiny Cheyenne County community, the three ran his car off the road.

Following the wreck, Strong said he feigned a broken foot and told the escapees that he couldn't walk. The jailer said the trio left him and began heading west on foot. He said the three told him they were going to California.

Stahr described the escapees, who remained at large late Monday, as "armed and dangerous."

Frank Forgets He's Blind

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Frank Feddalar says he's had a marvelous life: he hasn't been in jail.

Not that there's any reason he should have been. — it's just his way of saying that his 89 years have been well spent.

Blind from birth, Frank bears no bitterness. "You have to live your affliction down," he says. "I absolutely forget that I'm blind."

What others recognize by sight, Frank knows by sound.

Names Fade Away

"I have a deuce of a time remembering names," he says. "You get to be 89 and you know the voice, but you can't think of the name."

For his faltering, Frank gets teased by his friends.

"They kid me, but I'm not touchy about being blind I've lived my life that way," he said, chuckling about all the tricks that have been played on him.

"I get around by myself, you betcha," Frank says. He walks to work daily from his 4421 N. 60th home where he lives with his niece, Mrs. Virgie Murphy, and his sister, 95-year-old Mrs. Julia Fagan.

"Little kids want to lead me," he says. And he lets them, even though he knows he can get home alone.

"Sometimes they're all around me and I can hardly walk. I've got two and three on each hand and they all want to help."

Generations Of Help

It was probably the parents of these youngsters who, some 25 years ago, offered Frank their services as guides. And their grandparents and great-grandparents some years before that who helped Frank get established in the Havelock community.

Most of Frank's 89 years have been spent in Havelock. He first sold brooms, seeds, extracts and cookies door to door, then advertising space for the Interstate Newspaper Company which put out a town paper. He did some of the reporting too, taking notes on his slate in New York point, a transcribing system similar to Braille.

It was that system and not Braille that Frank learned during his years at the Nebraska School for the Blind in Nebraska City, which he entered at the age of eight in 1895.

Never Learned Braille

Years later Braille became the accepted touch reading method and Frank never got around to learning it.

Back then he was too busy working to repay a $100 loan he needed for voice lessons so he could go out on the Chataqua circuit. By the time he'd readied his voice the Chataqua folded and he never got his big break.

He laughs about his poor timing today, but back then it was quite a disappointment. However, he's since had a chance to put his tenor voice to use in many church choirs.

But he's still never learned Braille and relies on his Bible in New York point for reading.

Even Frank's great enthusiasm for Nebraska football goes back to Havelock ties. His first interest in the sport came from cheering an old Havelock High School.

Come fall, Frank can be found by the nearest radio, surrounded by clouds of smoke. "I'm a pipe-smoker," Frank says, "but through football games I always smoke cigars."

The only living charter member of the Havelock Lions Club, Frank proudly tells about each of the colorful club pins that decorate his lapel.

Business Slower Now

Business has slowed down for Frank since a competitor opened up across the street. But he's been coming to his hardware store office for 22 years and he doesn't see any reason to quit now.

Through the years it's been more than business ties that Frank has established with Havelock. He has become part of a community that has come to think of him as a legend.

Betty Wilson, hardware store employee and friend of Frank's from as far back as she can remember, says she doesn't "think there's a man, woman or child in Havelock who doesn't know Frank."

FEDDALAR... awaits business in hardware store.

Opening lead - jack of hearts.

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a heart. You win with the ace and can see that your best source for tricks lies in clubs. So let's say you play a diamond to the ace at trick two and return a club to the queen.

If East is a good friend of yours he will take the ace and you will have no trouble making the contract after establishing dummy's clubs. But if East's aim in life is to win, he ducks the queen of clubs and you go down one or two tricks. You make only one club trick instead of the four or five you had hoped to make.

Now let's go back to trick two and lead a low club from dummy! This unusual play forces East to win the trick and permits you to establish the clubs and also cash them later on. It wins not only when the clubs are divided 3-2 but also when either defender has the singleton ace of clubs.

It is true that the suggested method of play will cost you a trick if it turns out that West has the doubleton or tripleton ace of clubs, but this is a relatively insignificant trick that you can afford to give away in the interests of making the contract.

The point is that by far the best chance for the contract lies in capitalizing on dummy's clubs, and that easily the most promising move in this direction is a low club play from dummy at trick two.

Certainly the low club play is startling in its nature, but that is hardly a good reason for neglecting to use the play that the situation calls for.

Tell Todd To Keep His Hands To Himself

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and so is Todd. Everytime we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.

I have been going with Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am "in love" with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

I hope I don't lose him because I really enjoy his company. When he tries to touch me, and I make him stop, he doesn't put up a fight. He stops. But the first time he gets the chance, he tries again.

Please don't tell me to quit seeing Todd because I don't want to. And don't tell me I am too young to feel this way because if I feel this way I must not be too young.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are a very bright young woman, so listen carefully. Obviously you have normal sexual feelings, which is nothing to be ashamed of, but you are not yet sufficiently mature emotionally to handle a physical relationship. The word from here is: Tell Todd to knock off the hand bit. And if he doesn't — YOU do!

Woman Charged With Violating Witchcraft Law

Morganton, N.C. (UPI) — A Morganton woman who allegedly correctly predicted the day another woman would die has been charged with violating North Carolina's "Witchcraft Law."

Kathrin Carpenter, 22, filed the charge against Joann Denton, claiming Mrs. Denton predicted during a seance March 20 that Mrs. Carpenter's mother, Dorothy Elizabeth Ramsey, would die April 10.

Mrs. Ramsey, 38, died on that date. An autopsy report showed a "high level" of alcohol and drugs in the body which appeared to be the cause of death.

"I think this lady should be stopped because it works on your nerves to be told when you are going to die and when the day comes, it really gets to you," said Mrs. Carpenter.

Mrs. Carpenter said her mother was told at a seance that she would die in a car accident and was involved in an auto accident the week of her death. Although uninjured, she said Mrs. Ramsey was extremely nervous afterwards.

She said her mother already was under a doctor's care for a nervous condition and after the accident, and knowing of her predicted death, had been taking pills to calm herself.

"I believe it (the prediction) worked on her nerves," said Mrs. Carpenter. "She just kept taking pills and taking pills to calm herself down."

Mrs. Denton allegedly made the prediction at a seance in her home, supposedly held for the purpose of speaking to Buddy Carpenter, Kathrin's husband, who died Oct. 10, 1975.

When Mrs. Ramsey's body was found, police said several pills were found nearby along with a suicide note. However, there has been no formal ruling on whether the death was suicide.

Mrs. Denton's attorney, Douglas Powell, said she would have no comment on the charge at present but "she'll have all kinds of statements to make later on."

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Tuesday in Burke County District Court. The charge is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a maximum fine of $500 and up to six months in jail.

The so-called "Witchcraft Law," which applies to 65 of North Carolina's counties, prohibits the practice of phrenology, palmistry, fortune-telling or clairvoyance or "other crafts of a similar kind" but exempts amateurs under specified circumstances.

Frank Forgets He's Blind

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

Frank Feddalar says he's had a marvelous life: he hasn't been in jail.

Not that there's any reason he should have been, — it's just his way of saying that his 89 years have been well spent.

Blind from birth, Frank bears no bitterness. "You have to live your affliction down," he says. "I absolutely forget that I'm blind."

What others recognize by sight, Frank knows by sound.

Names Fade Away

"I have a deuce of a time remembering names," he says. "You get to be 89 and you know the voice, but you can't think of the name."

For his faltering, Frank gets teased by his friends.

"They kid me, but I'm not touchy about being blind. I've lived my life that way," he said, chuckling about all the tricks that have been played on him.

"I get around by myself, you betcha," Frank says. He walks to work daily from his 4421 N. 60th home where he lives with his niece, Mrs. Virgie Murphy, and his sister, 95-year-old Mrs. Julia Fagan.

"Little kids want to lead me," he says. And he lets them, even though he knows he can get home alone.

"Sometimes they're all around me and I can hardly walk. I've got two and three on each hand and they all want to help."

Generations Of Help

It was probably the parents of these youngsters who, some 25 years ago, offered Frank their services as guides. And their grandparents and great-grandparents some years before that who helped Frank get established in the Havelock community.

Most of Frank's 89 years have been spent in Havelock. He first sold brooms, seeds, extracts and cookies door to door, then advertising space for the Interstate Newspaper Company which put out a town paper. He did some of the reporting too, taking notes on his slate in New York point, a transcribing system similar to Braille.

It was that system and not Braille that Frank learned during his years at the Nebraska School for the Blind in Nebraska City, which he entered at the age of eight in 1895.

Never Learned Braille

Years later Braille became the accepted touch reading method and Frank never got around to learning it.

Back then he was too busy working to repay a $100 loan he needed for voice lessons so he could go out on the Chataqua circuit. By the time he'd readied his voice the Chataqua folded and he never got his big break.

He laughs about his poor timing today, but back then it was quite a disappointment. However, he's since had a chance to put his tenor voice to use in many church choirs.

But he's still never learned Braille and relies on his Bible in New York point for reading.

Even Frank's great enthusiasm for Nebraska football goes back to Havelock ties. His first interest in the sport came from cheering an old Havelock High School.

Come fall, Frank can be found by the nearest radio, surrounded by clouds of smoke. "I'm a pipe-smoker," Frank says, "but through football games I always smoke cigars."

The only living charter member of the Havelock Lions Club, Frank proudly tells about each of the colorful club pins that decorate his lapel.

Business Slower Now

Business has slowed down for Frank since a competitor opened up across the street. But he's been coming to his hardware store office for 22 years and he doesn't see any reason to quit now.

Through the years it's been more than business ties that Frank has established with Havelock. He has become part of a community that has come to think of him as a legend.

Betty Wilson, hardware store employee and friend of Frank's from as far back as she can remember, says she doesn't "think there's a man, woman or child in Havelock who doesn't know Frank."

FEDDALAR... awaits business in hardware store.

Opening lead — jack of hearts.

Assume you're in three no-trump and West leads a heart. You win with the ace and can see that your best source for tricks lies in clubs. So let's say you play a diamond to the ace at trick two and return a club to the queen.

If East is a good friend of yours he will take the ace and you will have no trouble making the contract after establishing dummy's clubs. But if East's aim in life is to win, he ducks the queen of clubs and you go down one or two tricks. You make only one club trick instead of the four or five you had hoped to make.

Now let's go back to trick two and lead a low club from dummy! This unusual play forces East to win the trick and permits you to establish the clubs and also cash them later on. It wins not only when the clubs are divided 3-2 but also when either defender has the singleton ace of clubs.

It is true that the suggested method of play will cost you a trick if it turns out that West has the doubleton or tripleton ace of clubs, but this is a relatively insignificant trick that you can afford to give away in the interests of making the contract.

The point is that by far the best chance for the contract lies in capitalizing on dummy's clubs, and that easily the most promising move in this direction is a low club play from dummy at trick two.

Certainly the low club play is startling in its nature, but that is hardly a good reason for neglecting to use the play that the situation calls for.

dear

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and so is Todd. Everytime we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.

I have been going with Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am "in love" with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

I hope I don't lose him because I really enjoy his company. When he tries to touch me, and I make him stop, he doesn't put up a fight. He stops. But the first time he gets the chance, he tries again.

Please don't tell me to quit seeing Todd because I don't want to. And don't tell me I am too young to feel this way because if I feel this way I must not be too young.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are a very bright young woman, so listen carefully. Obviously you have normal sexual feelings, which is nothing to be ashamed of, but you are not yet sufficiently mature emotionally to handle a physical relationship. The word from here is: Tell Todd to knock off the hand bit. And if he doesn't — YOU do!

Tell Todd To Keep His Hands To Himself

Woman Charged With Violating Witchcraft Law

Morganton, N.C. (UPI) — A Morganton woman who allegedly correctly predicted the day another woman would die has been charged with violating North Carolina's "Witchcraft Law."

Kathrin Carpenter, 22, filed the charge against Joann Denton, claiming Mrs. Denton predicted during a seance March 20 that Mrs. Carpenter's mother, Dorothy Elizabeth Ramsey, would die April 10.

Mrs. Ramsey, 38, died on that date. An autopsy report showed a "high level" of alcohol and drugs in the body which appeared to be the cause of death.

"I think this lady should be stopped because it works on your nerves to be told when you are going to die and when the day comes, it really gets to you," said Mrs. Carpenter.

Mrs. Carpenter said her mother was told at a seance that she would die in a car accident and was involved in an auto accident the week of her death. Although uninjured, she said Mrs. Ramsey was extremely nervous afterwards.

She said her mother already was under a doctor's care for a nervous condition and after the accident, and knowing of her predicted death, had been taking pills to calm herself.

"I believe it (the prediction) worked on her nerves," said Mrs. Carpenter. "She just kept taking pills and taking pills to calm herself down."

Mrs. Denton allegedly made the prediction at a seance in her home, supposedly held for the purpose of speaking to Buddy Carpenter, Kathrin's husband, who died Oct. 10, 1975.

When Mrs. Ramsey's body was found, police said several pills were found nearby along with a suicide note. However, there has been no formal ruling on whether the death was suicide.

Mrs. Denton's attorney, Douglas Powell, said she would have no comment on the charge at present but "she'll have all kinds of statements to make later on."

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Tuesday in Burke County District Court. The charge is a misdemeanor and is punishable by a maximum fine of $500 and up to six months in jail.

The so-called "Witchcraft Law," which applies to 65 of North Carolina's counties, prohibits the practice of phrenology, palmistry, fortune-telling or clairvoyance or "other crafts of a similar kind" but exempts amateurs under specified circumstances.

Lincoln Police Provide Engraver For Valuables

Lincolnites may now obtain an electric engraver from police to put their Social Security numbers on valuable items in their homes or offices.

The device may be obtained from police by phoning 473-6245 under "Operation Identification" being sponsored jointly by police and the Independent Insurance Agents of Lincoln.

Police claim the program will make it harder for a burglar to sell stolen items, make it easier for police to identify stolen property and make it easier for a citizen to reclaim his property.

Participants in the program will be given a decal to place on their doors and windows to discourage would-be burglars.

Murder Count Filed Against Omaha Man, 19

Omaha (AP) — A 19-year-old Omaha man was charged with murder Monday in connection with the shooting death last October of Hendrick Dohmen Jr., authorities said.

Douglas County Sheriff Ted Janing said Robert W. Record was arrested near downtown Omaha Monday by a sheriff's deputy and an investigator for the state patrol in connection with the Oct. 12 shooting incident.

Record was charged with murder before Douglas County Judge Samuel Cooper and was being held without bond.

Janing said Dohmen was shot Oct. 12 while driving east on West Dodge and 144th Street in West Omaha. Dohmen died Oct. 19 without regaining consciousness, Janing said.

Lincoln Police Provide Engraver For Valuables

Lincolinites may now obtain an electric engraver from police to put their Social Security numbers on valuable items in their homes or offices.

The device may be obtained from police by phoning 473-6245 under "Operation Identification" being sponsored jointly by police and the Independent Insurance Agents of Lincoln. Police claim the program will make it harder for a burglar to sell stolen items, make it easier for police to identify stolen property and make it easier for a citizen to reclaim his property.

Participants in the program will be given a decal to place on their doors and windows to discourage would-be burglars.

Murder Count Filed Against Omaha Man, 19

Omaha (AP) — A 19-year-old Omaha man was charged with murder Monday in connection with the shooting death last October of Hendrick Dohmen Jr., authorities said.

Douglas County Sheriff Ted Janing said Robert W. Record was arrested near downtown Omaha Monday by a sheriff's deputy and an investigator for the state patrol in connection with the Oct. 12 shooting incident.

Record was charged with murder before Douglas County Judge Samuel Cooper and was being held without bond.

Janing said Dohmen was shot Oct. 12 while driving east on West Dodge and 144th Street in West Omaha. Dohmen died Oct. 19 without regaining consciousness, Janing said.

San Francisco — On Tuesday the tutor arrives and we set the feet of the youngest boy on the road to the Presidency.

I don't wish any hard luck on my kids but Democracy was whipped into me when I was doing the heel-and-toe to the little red brick schoolhouse.

"Any boy in this room can grow up to be president!" said Miss Batchelor firmly. ("Old Batch" we called her.)

However, the odds are pretty good. Chances are he won't have to be president. Still we must be prepared.

We started in first grade. The school psychologist said: "Ask your pediatrician." I said: "Look, I think his grades are poor because he's goofing off."

The psychologist said: "Maybe he should have a neurological examination. Take him to Dr. Grumble."

Let me tell you when you get on this roller coaster, it looks innocent enough. But wait until you hit the dips!

Dr. Grumble put the boy to building blocks. He murmured something about, "Possible minimal brain dysfunction. I want to get a specialist to analyze these tests."

By this time I was nervous as a fox in a forest fire.

I went to the medical libraries and loaded up with material. Not Dr. Spock diaper changing routines. I mean deep stuff.

The book said: "Minimal brain dysfunction and hyperkinesis describe child behavior about which even experts disagree."

I said: "If I read that right, there are no experts. Just a bunch of doctors squabbling with each other."

"Hyperkinesis", the book said, was "fidgeting, easily distracted, inattention." I went over and peeked at the boy through the school window. He was not fidgeting. He was not distracted. He was paying attention.

He paid attention to a rabbit. Schools now bring animals for the kids. Hamsters. Rabbits. Turtles. Then they say they don't pay attention to books. Who wants books when you can grab a rabbit?

The neurologist tapped his pen on his desk and said: "We can't put our finger on anything definite. Yet. But if we do find anything, we have had very good results with a new treatment. In some cases."

For awhile I was thinking, "How did I ever get into this?" Now I thought, "How am I going to get out of it?"

The school psychologist said: "Let's try the child with Dr. Mumble. Fine reputation with children."

Dr. Mumble asked the child if he liked school. He said he guessed so.

"She's OK, I guess."

The new thing then was Ritalin. Peps up the old. Slows down the young. I said: "Hey, that stuff is speed. I'm not hot about my child going on street drugs."

I got overruled. All kids were being put on this baby speed. Let a kid throw a ball at school. Hyperactive. Put him on Ritalin. (Now it turns out a whole bunch of medics say Ritalin can be bad for kids.)

So school went on. And by and by we just dropped the Ritalin — which made no difference I could see, on it or off it. And all that happened it left me so nervous that if the boy gets a couple of "unsatisfactory" grades —

I go out and hire tutors and have a nervous breakdown and choke the neck of the bottle of cooking sherry.

He paid attention to a rabbit. Schools now bring animals for the kids. Hamsters. Rabbits. Turtles. Then they say they don't pay attention to books. Who wants books when you can grab a rabbit?

The neurologist tapped his pen on his desk and said: "We can't put our finger on anything definite. Yet. But if we do find anything, we have had very good results with a new treatments. In some cases."

For awhile I was thinking, "How did I ever get into this?" Now I thought, "How am I going to get out of it?"

The school psychologist said: "Let's try the child with Dr. Mumble. Fine reputation with children."

Dr. Mumble asked the child if he liked school. He said he guessed so.

"Do you like your sister?" "She's OK, I guess."

The new thing then was Ritalin. Peps up the old. Slows down the young. I said: "Hey, that stuff is speed, I'm not hot about my child going on street drugs."

I got overruled. All kids were being put on this baby speed. Let a kid throw a ball at school. Hyperactive. Put him on Ritalin.

(Now it turns out a whole bunch of medics say Ritalin can be bad for kids.)

So school went on. And by and by we just dropped the Ritalin — which made no difference I could see, on it or off it. And all that happened it left me so nervous that if the boy gets a couple of "unsatisfactory" grades—

I go out and hire tutors and have a nervous breakdown and choke the neck of the bottle of cooking sherry.

Ak-Sar-Ben Officials Open Schedule With Optimism

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Optimism is the key word for Tuesday's opening day of the Ak-Sar-Ben horse races.

"We're hoping for 16,000 people and a mutual handle of $1.4 million," noted Stan Bowker, Ak-Sar-Ben's director of member activities. "Besides that, if we can hit $1 million on Wednesday and Thursday, we should hit $1 million every day this week."

The highest opening-day crowd in Ak-Sar-Ben history was 15,425 in 1974 and the best mutual handle for an opener was $1,118,013 last season.

The Omaha track enjoyed its best season ever last season. The daily average crowd, of 15,427 was ninth-best in the country.

The daily average mutual handle of $1,208,996 was a 6.98 per cent boost from the previous record of $1,130,124 set in 1974.

Meanwhile, Prince Tu, who wasn't feeling at his peak, last fall with a slight bout with hepatitis, is set for the opener.

"We decided to turn him out so he'd get better. I think he's feeling all right now," noted Prince Tu's trainer, Jim Hughes. "He ran twice at Sunland Park (near El Paso, Tex.) and he won both races in March, so I think he's recovered."

The Leopoldo Villareal-owned colt is one of the standouts in the $15,000 Inaugural Purse, the highlight of Tuesday's opening-day card here at Ak-Sar-Ben.

He's won both starts this year and captured four of seven outings in 1975 as a 2-year-old. He also finished second three times — a brilliant record.

Included among his juvenile wins were the $6,000 Riley Allison Futurity Consolation, the $8,965 Freshman Stakes and the $14,946.25 Juvenile Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Still, Prince Tu will be one of 14 horses expected to attract considerable attention in this 5 1/2-furlong race for 3-year-old allowance runners.

"I don't know a lot of the horses in the race, but my colt will run good," Hughes predicted.

A Frank Bemis-owned entry of Avdee and Kim's Lad is also expected to be in contention.

Avdee, a gelding by former Omaha Gold Cup winner Might, won three of six outings with two seconds this season. He won at Keystone and twice at Oaklawn Park.

Kim's Lad, who won this spring at Oaklawn, captured two stakes races at last summer's

State Fairgrounds meeting in Lincoln.

But the real runner may well be N. W. Smith's Lawton, Kid, trained by perennial Fanner Park trainer titlist Don Von Hemel.

The gelding has triumphed in three of five outings this spring at Oaklawn with his wire-to-wire style. He has already earned $25,540 this season.

If finances produce winners, then D. L. King's Klitso could be victorious.

He won $43,084 last year — the top 1975 performance by any entrant. He's earned $32,510 this year — also the top effort by any contestant.

Klen Klitso finished third to Kentucky Derby-bound Elucutionist at Oaklawn. He is a come-from-behind runner who has proven he can win even at sprint distances.

Other entrants include E. C. Cashman's Name O' Fortune and Le Punch. D. Patterson's Ruby's Rule, W. Stites' Mr. Stites, A. P. Landry and C. E. Graci's Joe Ned; B. R. Evans' Hemp and Skump; J. K. Houssels' Scott's Popsy; Douglas Boose's Dakota Streaker, and J. H. Neal's Arabian Champ.

The Lincoln newspapers will not provide results from Ak-Sar-

Ben on the telephone. Complete results from each day's races will be printed in all editions of the Lincoln newspapers.

Graded entries, with best bets and longesth specials, will be printed in each edition of the Lincoln newspapers for all 75 racing days at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Ak-Sar-Ben will race 75 days, including 15 days of the State Fairgrounds meet through Aug. 7.

There will be racing Tuesdays through Saturdays with Monday races on May 10 and 31 and July 5. Post times will be 4 p.m. on weekdays and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays.

Lincoln radio station KECK will broadcast five programs from Ak-Sar-Ben each racing day with Frank Allen.

The programs include scratches at 8:35 a.m., predictions at 12:15 p.m., the daily double at 5:05, a live broadcast of the feature race at 6:45 p.m. and results and prices immediately after the ninth race has been declared official. The daily double, feature race and results will be on about two hours earlier on Saturdays and holidays.

Good Meets Coming Up

Lincoln area track and field fans appear to be in for some good competition in the only two home meets for the Nebraska Cornhuskers this season.

Based on past history, Saturday's meet against Iowa State looks like a runaway for Nebraska, but Coach Jerry Barland's seventh Cyclone team has some outstanding athletes.

The meet will be the windup of All-Sports Day at Nebraska, following a Husker baseball game and the annual Red vs. White intrasquad football game that winds up spring practice. Field events will begin at 4 p.m. and the first race is set for 4:30 p.m. at Ed Weir Track.

Iowa State has a potential sub-four-minute miler in Jeff Myers, a sophomore who anchored the Cyclones to victory in the distance medley relay last Saturday in the Drake Relays. His time, despite poor weather conditions, was 4:03.0.

Other parts of that relay included Gary Presuhn with a :48.4 in the 440, Dave Korir with a 1:51.6 in the 880, and Joe Burke with a 3:01.4 in the three-quarters.

Iowa State also has the Big Eight's leading high jumper in Steve Kuehl, who has cleared 7-2.

Big 8 Will Be Tough

Based on results at Drake, the Big Eight outdoor championship scheduled May 14-15 at Ed Weir Track will be a very fiercely fought meet. One of the better races will be the 880-yard run where there are a lot of classy athletes.

The meet will be run at metric distances, same as at Texas, Kansas and Drake. This has been done because of Olympic qualifying standards which are listed in meters.

To refresh your memories, the following are the English equivalents of metric events:

100 meters equals 109 yards, 1 foot, 1 inch.
110 meters equals 120 yards, 0 feet, 9 inches.
400 meters equals 437 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches.
800 meters equals 874 yards, 2 feet, 8 inches.
1,500 meters equals 1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches.

To help fans relate metric times with times of events run in yards, here are the approximate equivalents in timing between the metric and English distances:

100 yard to 100 meters — add approximately nine-tenths of a second.
440 yards to 400 meters — subtract approximately three-tenths of a second.
800 yards to 800 meters — subtract approximately seven-tenths of a second.
One mile to 1,500 meters — subtract approximately 17-18 seconds.
Three miles to 5,000 meters — add approximately 30 seconds.

Cromwell An Olympian?

Kansas' Nolan Cromwell didn't quite match his times at Texas and Kansas last Saturday at Drake, but he ticked off a :50.11 run in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in a losing race against Ralph Mann, the American record holder at :49.51. Mann's time was :50.09.

Kansas coach Bob Timmons thinks Cromwell's runs the last three weeks (49.74 at Texas and :49.8 at Kansas) indicates that he has a shot at the Olympic team.

Now that spring football has ended, he'll have time to concentrate on his techniques and perhaps lead the United States to Montreal in the intermediates. Cromwell has been spending an hour a day with the football team working mostly on passing and not being involved in any contact work.

Cromwell will be favored in the Big Eight, but he could get a severe test from Greg Byram of Oklahoma, who has gone :50.85 this season. Byram's time at Drake was :51.43.

Nebraska's Chuck Malito hasn't been running as well in that event as he did a year ago. His best so far this season is :52.94 and he had a :53.27 at Drake. Last season, his best time was :51.4 at Drake.

Malito won the Big Eight outdoor 440-yard dash title here two years ago and has a career best in that event of :47.8. The best Big Eight time this year in the 440 has been :48.0 by Dale Udo of Missouri. With the intermediates so loaded with talent, perhaps Malito's best conference title chance would be a switch back to the 440.

Overton Ready For Mile

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

What else is there for Omaha Westside's Dan Overton, the state prep track leader in the 220, 440 and 880?

Would you believe the mile? Westside track coach Bob Klein insists Overton might be among the state's best milers. He's even contemplating entering his versatile senior standout in the event for district and state meets.

"The mile hasn't really been run all that well yet," Klein said. "I know Dan can run a decent mile. He ran a 4:30.2 in dual the middle part of last season."

Overton leads the state with a 2:19 in the 220, 49.8 in the 440 and a 1:55.7 in the 880. The state mile lead is only 4:30.0.

"We might not find out if Dan can run a good mile the way the season is winding down on us," Klein said, "but Dan may well favor running the mile over the 220 at the state meet.

"He's not that good a sprinter," his coach admitted. "He ran a :10.2 and won the 100 in our own invitational. That :21.9 is kind of deceiving since it was on a straightaway at Council Bluffs.

"Dan doesn't have that real burst of speed at the beginning of a race for a good sprinter," Klein added. "The last part of his race is the better part of his race. That's why we think he can turn in a good mile."

Klein is positive Overton will run the 440 because he wants to defend his gold medal in the state meet. "He also wants the 880 because he's been a bridesmaid twice at state and feels this is his turn," Klein said. "The 440-880 mile is a tough one to pull off," the Westside coach added. "Barney Hill couldn't even do it. Of course, he threw the 2-mile in there, too."

Nevertheless, Klein has learned never to underestimate Overton's competitiveness.

"I coached Guy Ingles," Klein said, "and I think Dan is the best competitor we've ever had here. He's a little more intense than Guy."

Overton has what Klein calls fierce pride. "He works and practices awfully hard," he said. "He leads and tries to win everything. He won't even let someone beat him on his 200."

Klein said Overton also will probably run a leg on a Westside relay team. "I don't know which one is our best shot yet — the 880, mile or 2-mile," he said. "But Dan will be the anchor whatever way we go."

Overton's best asset may be that he's a loose competitor. "He never worries about anything," Klein said. "We

Dan Overton
Versatile Runner

preach that if an athlete gives it his best shot and doesn't make any bonehead mistakes, he shouldn't worry about losing. Dan never does.

"He's a very articulate kid, very friendly and a joy to coach," Klein added.

Add that to his competitive intensity and one can understand why Overton leads so many events and why he may end up leading one more.

Knight More Than A Winner

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Bobby Knight recently completed an undefeated basketball season while coaching the University of Indiana basketball team to the NCAA championships. So you'd think he'd make a big deal about winning and his standout Hoosiers?

Wrong.

He discussed the "non-published" aspects of coaching as the guest speaker at the 15th annual Nebraska basketball banquet Monday night at the Knolls Restaurant.

"It's not the wins and losses, but how many young players develop into men," he noted. "Helping kids reach their potential is the most important thing. I don't talk about winning games, but about playing up to their potential."

"You can't develop character. You can't build it," he said.

Knight was perhaps the most entertaining and interesting after-dinner speaker who has spoken at any recent NU basketball banquets.

The former Ohio State player on coach Fred Taylor's national champions in the early 1960s joked about alumni, fans and news media.

"Everyone learned to write in the first or second grade, but then most people went on to other things. Most people learned to talk between nine and 15 months and then they went on to other things," he said.

When a lucky person won two season tickets to next season's Nebraska games, Knight kiddingly approached the speaker's stand and said he had the winning number.

"After seeing the kind of coaching here, I don't want the damned tickets," he said, an obvious kidding reference to his close friend, NU coach Joe Cipriano.

Cipriano, meanwhile, concentrated on his three departing

seniors — Jerry Fort, Larry Cox and Steve Willis.

"I've enjoyed being around these three seniors as much as any group I've ever been associated with," praised Cipriano. "I really hate to see them go."

"But whatever they do in life, I'm sure they'll be successes. There's a lot of parts of their game they can't do as well as other players, but as far as heart and dedication, no one has ever given any more than these three."

Individually, Cipriano termed Willis "a player who did a tremendous job. He had to adjust when he came to play for us."

"We've never had a better defensive center than Larry Cox. Larry was the workhorse. He made the team through defense and rebounding and not many players do that."

"Jerry was the first player to start for us all four years and I'm hoping he'll do well in pro ball. He has the opportunity to be a fine player."

With Fort and Willis at guards and Cox at center, the group sparked Nebraska to a 19-8 record — the third best in Nebraska history.

Cipriano, who just completed his 13th year at the Husker helm, cited his entire squad for its dedication.

"I've never been associated with kids that worked any harder. A lot of them didn't necessarily have the best talent, but they played together. They didn't gripe a lot about how hard we worked in practice. We didn't take many days off," he said.

"I don't think you can find a team that played a tougher schedule. I couldn't be any prouder of any group. The seniors and older players gave the younger people a chance to see what it takes to win."

The three seniors and assistant coach Jennings Austin, who just completed his first year on the NU staff, were presented watches by the Nebraska Rebounders Club.

The seniors and Knight received admiralships in the Great Navy of Nebraska by University President D. B. Varner.

Knight was most complimentary to Cipriano.

"You will have no bigger fan rooting for Nebraska basketball than myself," Knight said. "Nebraska is most fortunate to have somebody like Joe Cipriano representing your university and state. He's done a tremendous job for the Nebraska team."

Huskers Sweep Doubleheader, 4-0, 9-6

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska baseball coach Tony Sharpe might be thinking about moving his team to Alaska after watching the Huskers sweep both ends of a doubleheader Monday against Dana, 4-0 and 9-6.

Despite the cold, windy weather, senior pitcher Dave Buehrer sizzled, allowing only two hits in the opener and the Huskers' bats blazed for 13 hits in the nightcap to give reliever Boyd Batenhorst his fifth win of the season.

Buehrer, who pitched six innings of no-hit ball last Wednesday against UNO before taking himself out with a tired arm, hurled six more no-hit innings before he was tagged for two hits in the seventh inning of the opener.

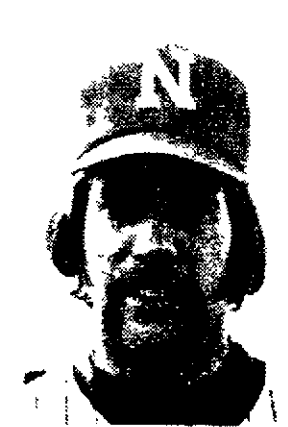

Buehrer allowed only one baserunner, on a walk, before the seventh inning leadoff single by Gary Redel. Dana's Ed Spicer followed with a single but the next batter grounded to second base and NU's Gary Healey stepped on second and threw to first for the double play. Buehrer then struck out the next batter to end the game and boost his record to 3-4.

Dick Anderson led off the Husker first inning with a single and advanced to third on two ground-outs to first base. He then scored on a wild pitch.

The Huskers added three runs in the fourth when Larry Winum smashed a triple to left-center field, scoring two runs, and then scored himself on an error.

"Going six or more innings the last three times out has helped me gain some consistency," said Buehrer. "I knew about the no-hitter, but I was just trying to watch the target and hit the corners."

Dave Buehrer
12 No-Hit Innings

"I only threw about 80 pitches this time as compared to 115 for six innings against UNO, so I had a lot left," Buehrer said. "I didn't throw all that hard because of the cold but when I needed help I got it from our fielders."

The Huskers played without an error in the opener, but almost fell apart in the final inning of the second game.

It took Bobby Thomas hitting four for four, scoring three runs with two RBIs, two RBI singles by Norm Glismann, a double and a single by Winum and a home run by Steve McManaman to give the Huskers their first doubleheader sweep since April 1.

Two runs in the third inning helped the Huskers gain a 3-3 tie, and an RBI single by Thomas in the fourth put Nebraska ahead to stay.

Dana, which had just one hit in 3 2/3 innings off Batenhorst, struck for three unearned runs on two hits and three NU errors before Batenhorst struck out the last two batters to end the game.

"Now's the time we need to start hitting and getting our pitching up like it should be," said Sharpe. "We're looking to the Big Eight tournament and

Ball, Abel Pace NWU Sweep

Senior pitchers Jack Ball and Larry Abel each fashioned three-hit shutouts over Concordia to help Nebraska Wesleyan clinch its fourth straight Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship Monday afternoon at Sherman Field.

The Plainsmen won the opener 7-0 and the nightcap 2-0.

The Plainsmen have won 33 straight conference games and are 14-0 in the league this year. Ball has a 7-0 record against conference foes and Abel is 5-0.

In the second game, Ball, right-hander, pitched a perfect game for four innings before being tagged for a single by John Seever in the fifth inning. Then Mark Greatens and Kevin Scherping singled in the seventh, moving a runner past first base for the first time in the game. The Plainsmen scored their two runs in the third when Scott Votava tripled to left scoring his brother Doug, who walked. Scott Votava then scored on a single by Bruce Reed.

Ball, now 7-2 with seven straight wins, walked none and struck out seven in seven innings.

In the opener, the Plainsmen, now 18-10 overall, jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI single by Bob Blake and a bases-loaded walk, scoring Reed, who singled.

Scott Votava doubled in a run in the second and John Svehla singled in a run in the fifth. Byron Stallworth singled in Gene Lessman in the seventh and Mike Reta stole home for the other two Wesleyan runs.

Right-hander Abel kept the Bulldogs in check, allowing no runners past second base throughout the game.

With no outs and two men on in the top of the seventh, it appeared Abel had gotten into a jam, but he struck out the next three batters he faced to gain the win.

Abel walked two and struck out nine in going the distance to boost his record to 5-3.

Ak-Sar-Ben Officials Open Schedule With Optimism

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Optimism is the key word for Tuesday's opening day of the Ak-Sar-Ben horse races.

"We're hoping for 16,000 people and a mutual handle of $1.4 million," noted Stan Bowker, Ak-Sar-Ben's director of member activities. "Besides that, if we can hit $1 million on Wednesday and Thursday, we should hit $1 million every day this week."

The highest opening-day crowd in Ak-Sar-Ben history was 15,425 in 1974 and the best mutual handle for an opener was $1,118,013 last season.

The Omaha track enjoyed its best season ever last season. The daily average crowd of 15,427 was ninth-best in the country.

The daily average mutual handle of $1,208,996 was a 6.98 per cent boost from the previous record of $1,130,124 set in 1974.

Meanwhile, Prince Tu, who wasn't feeling at his peak, last fall with a slight bout with hepatitis, is set for the opener.

"We decided to turn him out so he'd get better. I think he's feeling all right now," noted Prince Tu's trainer, Jim Hughes. "He ran twice at Sunland Park (near El Paso, Tex.) and he won both races in March, so I think he's recovered."

The Leopoldo Villareal-owned colt is one of the standouts in the $15,000 Inaugural Purse, the highlight of Tuesday's opening-day card here at Ak-Sar-Ben.

He's won both starts this year and captured four of seven outings in 1975 as a 2-year-old. He also finished second three times — a brilliant record.

Included among his juvenile wins were the $6,000 Riley Allison Futurity Consolation, the $8,965 Freshman Stakes and the $14,946.25 Juvenile Stakes at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Still, Prince Tu will be one of 14 horses expected to attract considerable attention in this 5 1/2-furlong race for 3-year-old maiden runners.

"I don't know a lot of the horses in the race, but my colt will run good," Hughes predicted.

A Frank Bemis-owned entry of Advsee and Kim's Lad is also expected to be in contention.

Advsee, a gelding by former Omaha Gold Cup winner Might, won three of six outings with two seconds this season. He won at Keystone and twice at Oaklawn Park.

Kim's Lad, who won this spring at Oaklawn, captured two stakes races at last summer's

State Fairgrounds meeting in Lincoln.

But the real runner may well be N. W. Smith's Lawton, Kid, trained by perennial Fanner Park trainer titlist Don Von Hemel.

The gelding has triumphed in three of five outings this spring at Oaklawn with his wire-to-wire style. He has already earned $25,540 this season.

If finances produce winners, then D. L. King's Klitso could be victorious.

He won $43,084 last year — the top 1975 performance by any entrant. He's earned $32,510 this year — also the top effort by any contendant.

Klen Klitso finished third to Kentucky Derby-bound Elouctionist at Oaklawn. He is a come-from-behind runner who has proven he can win even at sprint distances.

Other entrants include E. C. Cashman's Name O'Fortune and Le Punch, D. Patterson's Ruby's Rule, W. Stites' Mr. Stites, A. P. Landry and C. E. Graci's Joe Ned; B. R. Evans' Hemp and Skimp, J. K. Housels' Scott's Poppy, Douglas Boose's Dakota Streaker, and J. H. Neal's Arabian Champ.

The Lincoln newspapers will not provide results from Ak-Sar-Ben on the telephone. Complete results from each day's races will be printed in all editions of the Lincoln newspapers.

Graded entries, with best bets and longshot specials, will be printed in each edition of the Lincoln newspapers for all 75 racing days at Ak-Sar-Ben.

Ak-Sar-Ben will race 75 days, including 15 days of the State Fairgrounds' meet through Aug. 7.

There will be racing Tuesdays through Saturdays with Monday races on May 10 and 31 and July 5. Post times will be 4 p.m. on weekdays and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and holidays.

Lincoln radio station KECK will broadcast five programs from Ak-Sar-Ben each racing day with Frank Allen.

The programs include scratches at 8:35 a.m.; predictions at 12:15 p.m.; the daily double at 5:05; a live broadcast of the feature race at 6:45 p.m. and results and prices immediately after the ninth race has been declared official. The daily double, feature race and results will be on about two hours earlier on Saturdays and holidays.

Good Meets Coming Up

Lincoln area track and field fans appear to be in store for some good competition in the only two home meets for the Nebraska Cornhuskers this season.

Based on past history, Saturday's meet against Iowa State looks like a runaway for Nebraska, but Coach Jerry Barland's seventh Cyclone team has some outstanding athletes.

The meet will be the windup of All-Sports Day at Nebraska, following a Husker baseball game and the annual Red vs. White intrasquad football game that winds up spring practice. Field events will begin at 4 p.m. and the first race is set for 4:30 p.m. at Ed Weir Track.

Iowa State has a potential sub-four-minute miler in Jeff Myers, a sophomore who anchored the Cyclones to victory in the distance medley relay last Saturday in the Drake Relays. His time, despite poor weather conditions, was 4:03.0.

Other parts of that relay included Gary Presuhn with a :48.4 in the 440, Dave Korir with a 1:51.6 in the 880, and Joe Burke with a 3:01.4 in the three-quarters.

Iowa State also has the Big Eight's leading high jumper in Steve Kuehl, who has cleared 7-2.

Big 8 Will Be Tough

Based on results at Drake, the Big Eight outdoor championship scheduled May 14-15 at Ed Weir Track will be a very fiercely fought meet. One of the better races will be the 880-yard run where there are a lot of classy athletes.

The meet will be run at metric distances, same as at Texas, Kansas and Drake. This has been done because of Olympic qualifying standards which are listed in meters.

To refresh your memories, the following are the English equivalents of metric events:

- 100 meters equals 109 yards, 1 foot, 1 inch.
- 110 meters equals 120 yards, 0 feet, 9 inches.
- 400 meters equals 437 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches.
- 800 meters equals 874 yards, 2 feet, 8 inches.
- 1,500 meters equals 1,640 yards, 1 foot, 4 inches.

To help fans relate metric times with times of events run in yards, here are the approximate equivalents in timing between the metric and English distances:

- 100 yard to 100 meters — add approximately nine-tenths of a second.
- 440 yards to 400 meters — subtract approximately three-tenths of a second.
- 800 yards to 800 meters — subtract approximately seven-tenths of a second.
- One mile to 1,500 meters — subtract approximately 17-18 seconds.
- Three miles to 5,000 meters — add approximately 30 seconds.

Cromwell An Olympian?

Kansas' Nolan Cromwell didn't quite match his times at Texas and Kansas last Saturday at Drake, but he ticked off a :50.11 run in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in a losing race against Ralph Mann, the American record holder at :48.51. Mann's time was :50.09.

Kansas coach Bob Timmons thinks Cromwell's runs the last three weeks (49.74 at Texas and :49.8 at Kansas) indicates that he has a shot at the Olympic team.

Now that spring football has ended, he'll have time to concentrate on his techniques and perhaps lead the United States to Montreal in the intermediates. Cromwell has been spending an hour a day with the football team working mostly on passing and not being involved in any contact work.

Cromwell will be favored in the Big Eight, but he could get a severe test from Greg Byram of Oklahoma, who has gone :50.85 this season. Byram's time at Drake was :51.43.

Nebraska's Chuck Malito hasn't been running as well in that event as he did a year ago. His best so far this season is :52.94 and he had a :53.27 at Drake. Last season, his best time was :51.4 at Drake.

Malito won the Big Eight outdoor 440-yard dash title here two years ago and has a career best in that event of :47.8. The best Big Eight time this year in the 440 has been :48.0 by Dele Udo of Missouri. With the intermediates so loaded with talent, perhaps Malito's best conference title chance would be a switch back to the 440.

Overton Ready For Mile

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

What else is there for Omaha Westside's Dan Overton, the state prep track leader in the 220, 440 and 880?

Would you believe the mile? Westside track coach Bob Klein insists Overton might be among the state's best milers. He's even contemplating entering his versatile senior stand-out in the event for district and state meets.

"The mile hasn't really been run all that well yet," Klein said. "I know Dan can run a decent mile. He ran a 4:30.2 in dual the middle part of last season."

Overton leads the state with a :21.9 in the 220, :49.8 in the 440 and a 1:55.7 in the 880. The state mile lead is only 4:30.0.

"We might not find out if Dan can run a good mile the way the season is winding down on us," Klein said, "but Dan may well favor running the mile over the 220 at the state meet.

"He's not that good a sprinter," his coach admitted. "He ran a :10.2 and won the 100 in our own invitational. That :21.9 is kind of deceiving since it was on a straightaway at Council Bluffs.

"Dan doesn't have that real burst of speed at the beginning of a race for a good sprinter," Klein added. "The last part of his race is the better part of his race. That's why we think he can turn in a good mile."

Klein is positive Overton will run the 440 because he wants to defend his gold medal in the state meet. "He also wants the 880 because he's been a bridesmaid twice at state and feels this is his turn," Klein said.

"The 440-880-mile is a tough one to pull off," the Westside coach added. "Barney Hill couldn't even do it. Of course, he threw the 2-mile in there, too." Nevertheless, Klein has learned never to underestimate Overton's competitiveness.

"I coached Guy Ingles," Klein said, "and I think Dan is the best competitor we've ever had here. He's a little more intense than Guy."

Overton has what Klein calls fierce pride. "He works and practices awfully hard," he said. "He leads and tries to win everything. He won't even let someone beat him on his 20th 220."

Klein said Overton also will probably run a leg on a Westside relay team. "I don't know which one is our best shot yet — the 880, mile or 2-mile," he said, "but Dan will be the anchor whatever way we go."

Overton's best asset may be that he's a loose competitor. "He never worries about anything," Klein said. "We

Dan Overton
Versatile Runner

preach that if an athlete gives it his best shot and doesn't make any bonehead mistakes, he shouldn't worry about losing. Dan never does.

"He's a very articulate kid, very friendly and a joy to coach," Klein added.

Add that to his competitive intensity and one can understand why Overton leads so many events and why he may end up leading one more.

Knight More Than A Winner

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Bobby Knight recently completed an undefeated basketball season while coaching the University of Indiana basketball team to the NCAA championships. So you'd think he'd make a big deal about winning and his standout Hoosiers?

Wrong.

He discussed the "non-published" aspects of coaching as the guest speaker at the 15th annual Nebraska basketball banquet Monday night at the Knolls Restaurant.

"It's not the wins and losses, but how many young players develop into men," he noted. "Helping kids reach their potential is the most important thing. I don't talk about winning games, but about playing up to their potential."

"You can't develop character. You can't build it," he said.

Knight was perhaps the most entertaining and interesting after-dinner speaker who has spoken at any recent NU basketball banquets.

The former Ohio State player on coach Fred Taylor's national champions in the early 1960s joked about alumni, fans and news media.

"Everyone learned to write in the first or second grade, but then most people went on to other things. Most people learned to talk between nine and 15 months and then they went on to other things," he said.

When a lucky person won two season tickets to next season's Nebraska games, Knight kiddingly approached the speaker's stand and said he had the winning number.

"After seeing the kind of coaching here, I don't want the damned tickets," he said, an obvious kidding reference to his close friend, NU coach Joe Cipriano.

Cipriano, meanwhile, concentrated on his three departing

seniors — Jerry Fort, Larry Cox and Steve Willis.

"I've enjoyed being around these three seniors as much as any group I've ever been associated with," praised Cipriano. "I really hate to see them go."

"But whatever they do in life, I'm sure they'll be successes. There's a lot of parts of their game they can't do as well as other players, but as far as heart and dedication, no one has ever given any more than these three."

Individually, Cipriano termed Willis "a player who did a tremendous job. He had to adjust when he came to play for us."

"We've never had a better defensive center than Larry Cox. Larry was the workhorse. He made the team through defense and rebounding and not many players do that."

"Jerry was the first player to start for us all four years and I'm hoping he'll do well in pro ball. He has the opportunity to be a fine player."

With Fort and Willis at guards and Cox at center, the group sparked Nebraska to a 19-8 record — the third best in Nebraska history.

Cipriano, who just completed his 13th year at the Husker helm, cited his entire squad for its dedication.

"I've never been associated with kids that worked any harder. A lot of them didn't necessarily have the best talent, but they played together. They didn't gripe a lot about how hard we worked in practice. We didn't take many days off," he said.

"I don't think you can find a team that played a tougher schedule. I couldn't be any prouder of any group. The seniors and older players gave the younger people a chance to see what it takes to win."

The three seniors and assistant coach Jennings Austin, who just completed his first year on the NU staff, were presented watches by the Nebraska Rebounders Club.

The seniors and Knight received admiralships in the Great Navy of Nebraska by University President D. B. Varner.

Knight was most complimentary to Cipriano.

"You will have no bigger fan rooting for Nebraska basketball than myself," Knight said. "Nebraska is most fortunate to have somebody like Joe Cipriano representing your university and state. He's done a tremendous job for the Nebraska team."

Huskers Sweep Doubleheader, 4-0, 9-6

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska baseball coach Tony Sharpe might be thinking about moving his team to Alaska after watching the Huskers sweep both ends of a doubleheader Monday against Dana, 4-0 and 9-6.

Despite the cold, windy weather, senior pitcher Dave Buehrer sizzled, allowing only two hits in the opener and the Huskers' bats blazed for 13 hits in the nightcap to give reliever Boyd Batenhorst his fifth win of the season.

Buehrer, who pitched six innings of no-hit ball last Wednesday against UNO before taking himself out with a tired arm, hurled six more no-hit innings before he was tagged for two hits in the seventh inning of the opener.

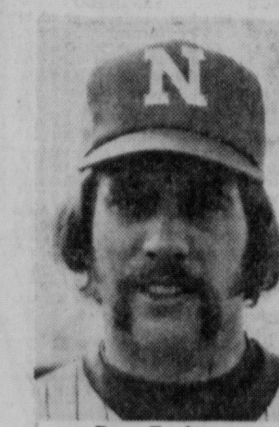

Buehrer allowed only one baserunner, on a walk, before the seventh inning leadoff single by Gary Redel. Dana's Ed Spicer followed with a single but the next batter grounded to second base and NU's Gary Healey stepped on second and threw to first for the double play. Buehrer then struck out the next batter to end the game and boost his record to 3-4.

Dick Anderson led off the Husker first inning with a single and advanced to third on two ground-outs to first base. He then scored on a wild pitch.

The Huskers added three runs in the fourth when Larry Winum smashed a triple to left-center field, scoring two runs, and then scored himself on an error.

"Going six or more innings the last three times out has helped me gain some consistency," said Buehrer. "I knew about the no-hitter, but I was just trying to watch the target and hit the corners."

Dave Buehrer
12 No-Hit Innings

"I only threw about 80 pitches this time as compared to 115 for six innings against UNO, so I had a lot left," Buehrer said. "I didn't throw all that hard because of the cold but when I needed help I got it from our fielders."

Dana, which had just one hit in 3 2/3 innings of Batenhorst, struck for three unearned runs on two hits and three NU errors before Batenhorst struck out the last two batters to end the game.

"Now's the time we need to start hitting and getting our pitching up like it should be," said Sharpe. "We're looking to the Big Eight tournament and

Two runs in the third inning helped the Huskers gain a 3-3 tie, and an RBI single by Thomas in the fourth put Nebraska ahead to stay.

Nebraska scored five runs on five hits in the sixth inning, including McManaman's solo blast over the left field fence, a triple by catcher Jon Henne followed by Thomas' double.

Dana, which had just one hit with four straight wins, things are improving."

Nebraska hosts Missouri Western in a doubleheader Thursday at the NU Diamond at 2 p.m.

"Now's the time we need to start hitting and getting our pitching up like it should be," said Sharpe. "We're looking to the Big Eight tournament and

Morning Briefing

Chicago Invites Tagge

Jerry Tagge To Sign Pact

Former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge is among 40 players who have been invited to attend the Chicago Bears three-day orientation session next weekend at the club's Lake Forest camp.

Tagge, who is expected to sign a Chicago contract next week, agreed to Chicago general manager Jim Finks' contract offer prior to the collegiate player draft.

Tagge, drafted by Green Bay in 1972, played with the Packers until 1974 when he went to San Antonio of the NFL.

Baseball

Chicago Cubs' centerfielder Rick Monday, who seized an American flag from two would-be flag burners during a game in Los Angeles Sunday on Monday was named Grand Marshall of the Chicago salute to the American flag parade June 12 announced Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

William Thomas was taken into custody after Monday broke up the flag burning demonstration and was booked for investigation of trespassing. A 15-year-old juvenile was also taken into custody.

Cleveland Indians' first baseman John "Boog" Powell, who suffered a sprained ankle in a scuffle during Sunday's game with the Oakland A's, was placed on the 21-day disabled list and replaced on the roster by manager Frank Robinson.

Mike Schmidt tied a Major League record by hitting his 10th and 11th homers in the month of April as the Philadelphia Phillies outslug the Cincinnati Reds 10-9.

Other Sports

Four members were enshrined in the Basketball Hall of Fame. The four were former Boston Celtics guard Bill Sharman, former Philadelphia Warriors' swingman Tom Gola, Temple University coach Harry Latwack and Notre Dame two-sport All-America Edward "Moose" Krause. Also honored was two-time Olympic coach Hank Iba of Oklahoma State recipient of the John W. Bunn Award for contributions to basketball.

Mildred Barnes of Central Missouri State College has been elected the first woman member of the Basketball Hall of Fame board of trustees. Barnes was a team manager for the U.S. women's basketball squad which won the 1975 Pan American Games.

STOP ACTION

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

'Dumb Jocks' Gone?

The recent controversies with the Nebraska swimming team and the University of California baseball team all present the same type of intrigue.

The athletes involved in the different disagreements questioned whether their coaches were doing their jobs correctly.

The Cal-Berkeley baseball players said that coach Jackie Jensen, a former major league standout, wasn't teaching fundamentals, and the NU swimming team said that coach John Reta wasn't changing his program fast enough to keep up with the times.

Many athletes have criticized their coaches for a lack of knowledge about their particular sports or for a lack of communication between players and coaches.

Do these actions mean that college athletes aren't going to let the coaches run their teams the way they see fit? Or that athletes need more input into the goals and methods of collegiate sports programs? Do the student-athletes feel the same way about sports that students of all kinds felt about the curriculum in the 1960s, i.e. drastic changes are needed?

Frustration Outlet

It could be that the frustrations an athlete gets from participation in a losing program builds until there is no other way out except to voice protest against the coach. After all, who's an easier target? The coach is the central figure in any program and he's responsible for the success or failure of the team in the long run.

Major league baseball coaches have come and gone after owners had failed to arrive at any other conclusion regarding the reasons for losing programs.

But what about winning coaches who are criticized by their teams? Jensen's Cal-Berkeley team was 20-14 when the players announced they were unhappy.

The problem is complex. Many of the athletes are on scholarship and that money keeps them in school. Otherwise they might not be in school. Should they have input into the structure of the program they participate in for four years in order to stay in college?

Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight, whose teams have lost one game in the past two years, said in the NSAA coaches clinic this past summer, "You let the kids decide the things that don't matter, like where to eat or what number to wear. But when something really counts, the coach makes the decision."

Somebody In Charge

It would seem that the only way to get a winning program would be to follow Knight's lead. Basically because somebody has to be in charge and somebody has to be responsible for the athletic program. The athletes can be responsible for themselves and nobody else. But the duty of putting together the whole group of people has to be up to one person. A coach.

Otherwise why have a coach? If he's just there to make up the schedule and make sure the uniforms are there and plan travel arrangements, then anybody could be a coach.

A coach has to be the disciplinarian, leader and inspiration for his players not only during a game or match but throughout the team's practices, meetings and other gatherings.

The coach has to do his job the way he sees fit. And the players really don't have much to say about it other than, "I quit." Besides their own performances and suggestions, players can't dictate the path the team takes and expect to have a successful sport.

Morning Briefing

Chicago Invites Tagge

Jerry Tagge To Sign Pact

Former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge is among 40 players who have been invited to attend the Chicago Bears' three-day orientation session next weekend at the club's Lake Forest camp.

Tagge, who is expected to sign a Chicago contract next week, agreed to Chicago general manager Jim Finks' contract offer prior to the collegiate player draft.

Tagge, drafted by Green Bay in 1972, played with the Packers until 1974 when he went to San Antonio of the WFL.

Baseball

Chicago Cubs' centerfielder Rick Monday, who seized an American flag from two would-be flag burners during a game in Los Angeles Sunday, on Monday was named Grand Marshall of the Chicago salute to the American flag parade June 12, announced Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

William Thomas was taken into custody after Monday broke up the flag burning demonstration and was booked for investigation of trespassing. A 15-year-old juvenile was also taken into custody.

Cleveland Indians' first baseman John "Boog" Powell, who suffered a sprained ankle in a scuffle during Sunday's game with the Oakland A's, was placed on the 21-day disabled list and replaced on the roster by manager Frank Robinson.

Mike Schmidt tied a Major League record by hitting his 10th and 11th homers in the month of April as the Philadelphia Phillies outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 10-9.

Other Sports

Four members were enshrined in the Basketball Hall of Fame. The four were former Boston Celtics' guard Bill Sharman, former Philadelphia Warriors' swingman Tom Gola, Temple University coach Harry Litwack and Notre Dame two-sport All-American Edward "Moose" Krause. Also honored was two-time Olympic coach Hank Iba of Oklahoma State, recipient of the John W. Bunn Award for contributions to basketball.

Mildred Barnes of Central Missouri State College has been elected the first woman member of the Basketball Hall of Fame board of trustees. Barnes was a team manager for the U.S. women's basketball squad which won the 1975 Pan American Games.

STOP ACTION

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

'Dumb Jocks' Gone?

The recent controversies with the Nebraska swimming team and the University of California baseball team all present the same type of intrigue.

The athletes involved in the different disagreements questioned whether their coaches were doing their jobs correctly.

The Cal-Berkeley baseball players said that coach Jackie Jensen, a former major league standout, wasn't teaching fundamentals, and the NU swimming team said that coach John Reta wasn't changing his program fast enough to keep up with the times.

Many athletes have criticized their coaches for a lack of knowledge about their particular sports or for a lack of communication between players and coaches.

Do these actions mean that college athletes aren't going to let the coaches run their teams the way they see fit? Or that athletes need more input into the goals and methods of collegiate sports programs? Do the student-athletes feel the same way about sports that students of all kinds felt about the curriculum in the 1960s, i.e. drastic changes are needed?

Frustration Outlet

It could be that the frustrations an athlete gets from participation in a losing program builds until there is no other way out except to voice protest against the coach. After all, who's an easier target? The coach is the central figure in any program and he's responsible for the success or failure of the team in the long run.

Major league baseball coaches have come and gone after owners had failed to arrive at any other conclusion regarding the reasons for losing programs.

But what about winning coaches who are criticized by their teams? Jensen's Cal-Berkeley team was 20-14 when the players announced they were unhappy.

The problem is complex. Many of the athletes are on scholarship and that money keeps them in school. Otherwise they might not be in school. Should they have input into the structure of the program they participate in for four years in order to stay in college?

Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight, whose teams have lost one game in the past two years, said in the NCAA coaches' clinic this past summer, "You let the kids decide the things that don't matter, like where to eat or what number to wear. But when something really counts, the coach makes the decision."

Somebody In Charge

It would seem that the only way to get a winning program would be to follow Knight's lead. Basically because somebody has to be in charge and somebody has to be responsible for the athletic program. The athletes can be responsible for themselves and nobody else. But the duty of putting together the whole group of people has to be up to one person. A coach.

Otherwise, why have a coach? If he's just there to make up the schedule and make sure the uniforms are there and plan travel arrangements, then anybody could be a coach.

A coach has to be the disciplinarian, leader and inspiration for his players not only during a game or match, but throughout the team's practices, meetings and other gatherings.

The coach has to do his job the way he sees fit. And the players really don't have much to say about it other than, "I quit." Besides their own performances and suggestions, players can't dictate the path the team takes and expect to have a successful sport.

Agent Who Spoke For Ex-Boss

Protests Transfer From Omaha

A State Liquor Control Commission agent who testified last year for the agency's chief law enforcement agent when the chief agent tried to regain his job has filed a protest against a transfer from Omaha.

Roger Irwin filed the grievance with Terry Micek, the commission's chief administrator, in connection with a transfer to a new assignment at McCook.

Last year, Irwin testified in a series of hearings before state personnel officers and finally the State Personnel Board on behalf of Norman Rollins of Ft. Cathoun. Rollins lost his bid for rehiring and has filed a lawsuit which is still pending.

Rollins questioned the alleged personal use of state equipment by Edward Robinson of Omaha, chairman of the commission.

Irwin declined to comment on whether his testimony had anything to do with his transfer order and Micek denied there was any connection.

College Track Meet Today

Kearney State College will be the favorite to retain its Nebraska college track crown Tuesday afternoon at the annual state meet set for 2 p.m. at Nebraska's Ed Weir Stadium.

Other teams competing with the powerful Antelopes and Nebraska's Cornhuskers in the meet include Doane, UNO, Fairbury, Concordia and Peru.

Season Is 25th

Toronto (UPI) — The National Ballet of Canada will open its 25th anniversary season in Montreal July 11-14, giving three performances of the late John Cranko's "Romeo and Juliet" as its contribution to the cultural program associated with the Montreal Olympics. It then will play at New York's Metropolitan Opera House July 20-Aug. 8, with guest star Rudolf Nureyev.

PSC Denies Rate Increase To Railroads

Nebraska's Public Service Commission voted 3-1 Monday to deny a 10 1/2% intrastate rate hike for railroads on shipments of scrap metal for recycling.

Despite a staff recommendation that the rate hike be granted, Commissioners Duane Gray of Columbus, Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont and Robert Marland of Lincoln voted against the increase. The Interstate Commerce Commission previously granted such a rate hike on interstate shipments but is still investigating profit levels.

Commissioner Jack Romans of Ord opposed the denial and commissioner James Munnely passed saying there was insufficient information.

Staff Attorney James Paine said three Norfolk firms tried to block the rate hike. They were Nucor Steel, Norfolk Iron and Metal and Nimco Steel Processors.

Judge's Order Reinstates City Councilman

U.S. District Judge Warren Urbom issued a temporary restraining order Monday reinstating Roger Green, ousted Scottsbluff city councilman.

The order remains effective while Urbom considers whether the case should be heard before one judge or a three-judge panel.

The Scottsbluff City Council voted 4-0 to remove Green under a 19

Morning Briefing

Chicago Invites Tagge

Former Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge is among 40 players who have been invited to attend the Chicago Bears' three-day orientation session next weekend at the club's Lake Forest camp.

Tagge, who is expected to sign a Chicago contract next week, agreed to Chicago general manager Jim Finks' contract offer prior to the collegiate player draft.

Tagge, drafted by Green Bay in 1972, played with the Packers until 1974 when he went to San Antonio of the WFL.

Baseball

Chicago Cubs' centerfielder Rick Monday, who seized an American flag from two would-be flag burners during a game in Los Angeles Sunday, on Monday was named Grand Marshall of the Chicago salute to the American flag parade June 12, announced Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

William Thomas was taken into custody after Monday broke up the flag burning demonstration and was booked for investigation of trespassing. A 15-year-old juvenile was also taken into custody.

Cleveland Indians' first baseman John "Boog" Powell, who suffered a sprained ankle in a scuffle during Sunday's game with the Oakland A's, was placed on the 21-day disabled list and replaced on the roster by manager Frank Robinson.

Mike Schmidt tied a Major League record by hitting his 10th and 11th homers in the month of April as the Philadelphia Phillies outslugged the Cincinnati Reds 10-9.

Other Sports

Four members were enshrined in the Basketball Hall of Fame. The four were former Boston Celtics guard Bill Sharman, former Philadelphia Warriors' swingman Tom Gola, Temple University coach Harry Litwak and Notre Dame two-sport All-American Edward "Moose" Krause. Also honored was two-time Olympic coach Hank Iba of Oklahoma State, recipient of the John W. Bunn Award for contributions to basketball.

Mildred Barnes of Central Missouri State College has been elected the first woman member of the Basketball Hall of Fame board of trustees. Barnes was a team manager for the U.S. women's basketball squad which won the 1975 Pan American Games.

STOP ACTION

'Dumb Jocks' Gone?

The recent controversies with the Nebraska swimming team and the University of California baseball team all present the same type of intrigue.

The athletes involved in the different disagreements questioned whether their coaches were doing their jobs correctly.

The Cal-Berkeley baseball players said that coach Jackie Jensen, a former major league standout, wasn't teaching fundamentals, and the NU swimming team said that coach John Reta wasn't changing his program fast enough to keep up with the times.

Many athletes have criticized their coaches for a lack of knowledge about their particular sports or for a lack of communication between players and coaches.

Do these actions mean that college athletes aren't going to let the coaches run their teams the way they see fit? Or that athletes need more input into the goals and methods of collegiate sports programs? Do the student-athletes feel the same way about sports that students of all kinds felt about the curriculum in the 1960s, i.e. drastic changes are needed?

Frustration Outlet

It could be that the frustrations an athlete gets from participation in a losing program builds until there is no other way out except to voice protest against the coach. After all, who's an easier target? The coach is the central figure in any program and he's responsible for the success or failure of the team in the long run.

Major league baseball coaches have come and gone after owners had failed to arrive at any other conclusion regarding the reasons for losing programs.

But what about winning coaches who are criticized by their fans? Jensen's Cal-Berkeley team was 20-14 when the players announced they were unhappy.

The problem is complex. Many of the athletes are on scholarship and that money keeps them in school. Otherwise they might not be in school. Should they have input into the structure of the program they participate in for four years in order to stay in college?

Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight, whose teams have lost the game in the past two years, said in the NSAA coaches' clinic is past summer, "You let the kids decide the things that don't matter, like where to eat or what number to wear. But when something really counts, the coach makes the decision."

Somebody In Charge

It would seem that the only way to get a winning program would be to follow Knight's lead. Basically because somebody has to be in charge and somebody has to be responsible for the athletic program. The athletes can be responsible for themselves and for people else. But the duty of putting together the whole group of people has to be up to one person. A coach.

Otherwise, why have a coach? If he's just there to make up the schedule and make sure the uniforms are there and plan travel arrangements, then anybody could be a coach.

A coach has to be the disciplinarian, leader and inspiration for players not only during a game or match, but throughout the team's practices, meetings and other gatherings.

The coach has to do his job the way he sees fit. And the players really don't have much to say about it other than, "I quit." Besides their own performances and suggestions, players can't dictate the way the team takes and expect to have a successful sport.

Staying Ahead

Repairs Less Expensive Than Buying New Car

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — Is there a "right" time to trade in your car? A magic moment when the cost of maintaining an aging auto is so high that it makes economic sense to pack it in and start again? The answer is no. Speaking purely from an economic point of view, it's smarter to drive your car into the ground than trade it in — undertaking whatever repairs are necessary as long as you can hold it together.

Jane Bryant Quinn

The bills for maintenance and repair build up to a peak in that year and then drop off. They don't increase again until the car has gone around 69,000, generally in the seventh year.

Many people replace their cars in the fourth year, when the first big thing goes wrong. They imagine that from that point, the repair bills will just get bigger and bigger. But in fact, once you make that major investment in new parts, the car is pretty much set to run for another two years. In the fifth and sixth year of ownership, the repair bills average about the same as they did in the third year.

Whether your car be standardized, a compact or a subcompact, repairs follow the same cycle — taking a jump in the fourth year, falling back, and not rising to new peaks until year seven. If you sell the car in year six, or after it has gone around 69,000 miles, you'll generally escape the next major round of breakdowns.

Of course, you could repair it again in the seventh year and drive it another 40,000 miles (as its next owner will). But most people are reluctant to depend on cars of that age as their family's primary means of transportation, if they can afford something better. If the car is kept, it will usually be as a second car.

Conventional wisdom has always held that depreciation is an important factor to consider when deciding on when to trade in your car. You're said to be "losing money" at the point when the cost of car repairs is higher than the depreciation, which generally happens in the fourth year.

In fact, it costs far less to repair the car and keep it than to turn it in for something new. That's because a new car depreciates so much in the first year that it "loses" you far more money than you'd spend repairing the old one.

For example, if you kept your car three years, then traded it in, your total four-year cost of transportation — including everything from depreciation to insurance and gasoline — would be $8,500, according to government figures. By comparison, if you had your old car repaired, the four-year cost would be only $7,800 — leaving you $700 ahead. After six years you would be $1,400 ahead. Savings in depreciation alone, after deducting repair and maintenance costs over six years, come to $750.

Some people don't like to hang on to cars too long because they lose their trade-in value. But by focusing on the trade-in, you lose sight of the big picture. Between the third year and the sixth year, a standard-sized 1974 car lost around $960 in value. But had you traded it in after three years, depreciation on the new car would have cost you $1,280 more than you "lost" by holding onto the old one.

Even if you drive your car so many miles that it needs a new engine and a new transmission, the economic arguments are on the side of making the repair and carrying on.

Stock Market Turns Mixed; Trading Dull

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, torn between good corporate earnings reports and the threat of rising interest rates, turned mixed Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than five points in the opening hour, crept upward during the afternoon to close ahead 2 1/2 at 1,002.78. But losers maintained a narrow edge over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading was dull, with only 15.52 million shares changing hands, compared with 17 million on Friday.

Wall Street's current interest rate and money supply worries began last Thursday and Friday and apparently spilled into the early going of Monday's session. Last week the Federal Reserve reported a third straight sharp weekly increase in the nation's money supply, kindling fears the Fed might act to clamp down on the supply of cash.

On Friday and over the weekend, Wall Street read reports that the Fed had taken steps in the money market that might lead to a new round of general interest rate hikes, rarely a good sign for stocks.

As is customary, a spokesman for the Fed in Washington declined comment on reports of its monetary actions.

But as the session progressed, stock prices came back in a half-hearted advance, apparently buoyed by the continued stream of favorable corporate earnings reports.

Tiger International was among the day's most actively traded issues, gaining fractionally. A 172,000-share block was traded at one point at 15 1/4.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Hogs turned higher on the Omaha livestock market Monday while cattle also posted a higher trend, but it was actually lower than the last test of the cattle trade.

Additionally, there was yet another record top set on lambs.

The day's hog receipts were estimated at about 4,000 head. After a slow start, barrows and gilts turned fairly active.

The cattle run was estimated at about 4,500 head. Slaughter steers and heifers saw moderate activity, and the trend was called 50-cents to $1.00 higher than last week's dull closing trade. However, when compared with the last real test of the trade, which was early last Wednesday, Monday's trend was generally 50-cents to $1.00 lower.

Cows trended steady in moderate activity.

There were only about 300 sheep on offer. There weren't enough lambs to fully establish trends, but a few packages of choice and prime springers were noted from $61.00-$61.50, and the latter set a record top. The old record of $60.50 was set last Wednesday.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, April 27, 1976

That Aquarius kid named "Capricorn" is a mother — five kittens, born under Pisces, some with Pisces rising, a couple with Aries on the Ascendant. Capricorn never made it in the television commercial world. But she seems to be a good mother, even though she had her babies under some bed sheets next to the leg of her mistress, Capricorn is purring, being a mother and the farthest thing from her mind is appearing before cameras for a cat food commercial. I will apparently have to look elsewhere for talent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get going — assert yourself. Be original, independent. Creativity flourishes; member of opposite sex reaffirms love. Leo, Aquarius persons are in picture. Cycle is such that original concepts, ideas get a hearing and elevate your prestige.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pace slows — you get behind-scenes information. Intuitive intellect is active. You determine when something of importance is of occur. Capricorn and Aquarius persons figure prominently. Accent on temporary restriction, confinement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on romance, creativity, friendship, hopes and desires. Highlight flexibility; be versatile. Travel, write, publish. Open lines of communication, especially where Sagittarian enters picture. Solid gains indicated if petty differences are set aside.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What seems an obstacle is a challenge. You meet and hurdle it. Standing is elevated — you gain more recognition, authority. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently. Business matters now require close personal scrutiny.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Special studies, courses, spiritual enlightenment — these areas accented. Ability to learn, communicate, synthesize information is activated. You become more vibrant, popular and will be dealing with greater segment of public.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on partnership, legalities, co-operative efforts, settlement of problem that "separated" you from associate or mate. Pisces, Virgo individuals could be in picture. See clearly — avoid trap of self-deception.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Practice — perfect basic, catch up on homework. Accent also on employment, health, the exchange of ideas with relatives. Organize & get priorities in order. One who performs special services wants you to show greater appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on change, variety, ability to piece together bits of information. You are able now to obtain long-range view. Young person, very attractive, could distract you. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What seemed a closed issue could be reopened. Whatever you do, do it with vigor. Shake off any tendency to slip into slipshod methods, or to become too satisfied with status quo. Leo, Aquarius persons figure in picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short trip could aid in resolving dilemma. Relative and personal possessions could be seat of controversy. Another Aquarian, Cancer and a Leo might be involved. An idea, taken out of context, confuses, irritates.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on income potential; ability to diversify, to utilize element of time. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could be in picture. Check personal possessions — take precautions against loss, especially while in transit.

IF APRIL 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are completing a major cycle. August should be your most significant month this year. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life. You are dynamic, stubborn, attractive to opposite sex, impulsive, aggressive and possess innate charm. Obviously, you are complex — and a very challenging person.
